TheLingo.ai

BUYER RESEARCH REPORT

CallerWho

https://callerwho.com/ · 2026-11-13

837	1,837	7,616	25
posts and replies from real buyers, from 676 accounts	seller, ad and shill posts set aside	posts and replies read	places with posts

What it sells: CallerWho sells an AI phone system for HVAC, plumbing, electrical and roofing contractors that answers calls and texts 24/7, shows property details about the caller before pickup, books jobs on tech calendars and sends pay links.

Who buys it: Owner-operator plumbers, HVAC techs, electricians and roofers with 1 to 5 trucks, who answer their own phone from under a sink or on a roof. One truck is our ideal customer.; Owner-operator plumbers, HVAC techs, electricians and roofers with 1 to 5 trucks who answer their own phone from under a sink or on a roof (one truck is ideal); Home-service shops of up to about 15 technicians that have a dispatcher or office staff and want after-hours and overflow coverage; Contractors currently paying for a live answering service or relying on voicemail and callbacks; Other home-service trades the site names, such as garage door, pest control, restoration, locksmith, landscaping, solar, pool service, cleaning and appliance repair; Contractors who take tenant maintenance calls for property managers (property-management line mode)

What was read: 3,195 posts and 4,421 replies from 25 sources: 837 from real buyers (676 accounts), 1,837 from sellers (1,183 vendors, 475 ads, 179 shills), 4,942 unrelated.

What the findings rest on: The findings were written from the 830 buyer posts that say something, of 837, set against the 1,766 seller posts compared (every seller post that makes a claim, of the 1,837 read). Sellers are vendors, ads and shills: all are read as the competition, never as buyers. Every count behind a finding is made in code: each of these posts was tagged against the findings, one post at a time, and the tags were counted. The website was read on 8 pages, each to its end.

How to read the counts: counts in this report are of posts and replies, not of people. Two are of accounts, each writer counted once on a site and a post with no named writer as one: the accounts behind the buyer posts above, and how many real buyers named a competitor. "Real buyer" is the AI's reading of a post, not proof that anyone will buy; the posts behind each finding are linked so you can check it.

Kept from earlier checks: 333 posts and 283 replies that 3 earlier checks of this site found and this search did not return again. They are counted above.

AI model: Claude Opus 5.5 (medium effort) sorted the posts and replies; Claude Fable 5.2 (medium effort) planned the search and wrote this report.

The gap

Buyers' loudest worry is that callers hang up the moment a machine answers and the owner never finds out; the site gives them ways to put a person first, but no hang-up numbers or named shops to show it holds up on real calls.

Demand signal

Moderate demand

Counted from the posts this report read. It shows how much real buyers talk about this and what they say, not whether they will buy from you.

Real buyers talking 87

837 posts and replies from real buyers (676 accounts) in 16 places; 27% of the posts on this topic came from buyers.

How much it hurts 58

46% of buyer posts describe a problem or the moment that made them start looking.

Already paying or shopping 62

17% of buyer posts are from someone who uses something for this today, 3% from someone who tried one and quit, 22% from someone shopping.

Unhappy with the alternatives 54

Buyers named an alternative 661 times and complained in 16% of them.

Room to stand apart 46

837 buyer posts against 1,837 seller posts; sellers rarely answer 2 of the 12 things buyers raise most.

Fix these first

Each one: where it goes on your site, the text to paste, and what buyers said.

1. Voicemail and a callback work fine

 97 Very strong signal · 75 real posts from 66 accounts in 10 places, 142 reactions. Buyers raise it and the site only touches it.

- Page: callerwho.com/

- Where: A new section directly after the section headed "You counted the missed calls. Then you called back at 8pm." and before the section headed "What it says, and what it won't."
- Paste this:

> Busy enough already? Use it to pick your calls.
> Maybe voicemail and a callback at the end of the day work fine for you, and you're as busy as you want to be. Then keep answering your own phone. Switch the AI off and it rings as normal. While it rings, the card shows the caller's name, whether they own or rent, the home's estimated value and the drive from your shop. Take the calls you want and let the rest go to voicemail, like you do today. Every voicemail is written out so you can read it between jobs.

- Also: Add to the section headed "What owners worry about before they switch.": "Voicemail and a callback work fine for me." If you have all the work you want, don't change how you answer. Switch the AI off and your phone rings as normal, with the caller's name, owner or renter, home value and drive time on screen while it rings. You pick the calls worth taking.
- Buyers said: "People just leave a voicemail and I call them back at the end of the day." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/handyman/comments/1r4mmrf/comment/o5ck21g/)
- Buyers said: "I typically wait at least 20 hours to respond to voicemails, that way if it's really an emergency they'll hopefully have called someone else." (r/Plumbing, www.reddit.com/r/Plumbing/comments/1r5kpbl/comment/o5k046a/)

---

2. It can't schedule like I do

 84 Very strong signal · 22 real posts from 17 accounts in 5 places, 165 reactions. Buyers raise it and the site only touches it.

- Page: callerwho.com/
- Find this line: "It offers only times that fit your shop hours, each tech's hours and the jobs already booked. Jobs outside your towns come to you as a text: reply KEEP or DROP. You can drag any job to another tech on the Dispatch Board, or turn the AI off for a line in one switch."
- Replace it with:

> It offers only times that fit your shop hours, each tech's hours and the jobs already booked, and it promises an arrival window, two hours by default, that you set per line. You don't have to quiz the customer about the house first: the card shows the year it was built, its size and baths and the drive from your shop, with what to bring. Jobs outside your towns come to you as a text: reply KEEP or DROP. A distance rule can ring you first so you decide. Best stop order suggests the driving order for each tech's day, and nothing moves until you click Apply. Drag any job to another tech on the Dispatch Board, or turn the AI off for a line in one switch.

- Also: Once fix 4 is confirmed, add its sentence about job length and drive time after the first sentence of this answer.

- Buyers said: "But if every customer and schedule a time slot back to back you'll over book yourself, and be late to every job except your first one." (r/Plumbing, www.reddit.com/r/Plumbing/comments/1jtylhq/comment/mlycpcw/)
- Buyers said: "It won't know how to schedule the appointment for a quote efficiently based on where the caller is located and where I will be." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/handyman/comments/1r0tb58/comment/o4ko3ug/)

---

3. Treats regulars differently from new callers

 64 Strong signal · 9 real posts from 9 accounts in 4 places, 13 reactions. Buyers ask for it, the site already has it or something close, and few sellers talk about it.

- Page: callerwho.com/
- Find this line: "Answers in your shop's name, knows returning customers, and speaks English and Spanish."
- Replace it with:

> Your regulars ring differently
> A regular calls and your phone sounds different, so you know before you look. The card shows their past jobs, any open estimate and any unpaid invoice while it rings. If the AI answers, it knows them by name, address and upcoming jobs, so they don't start from scratch.

- Also: Change this tile's heading from "Greet callers with context" to the heading in the paste, and move the lost detail into the tile headed "Talk to a real person" as one sentence: "The AI answers in your shop's name and speaks English and Spanish."
- Buyers said: "Issues began when it was used for after-hours and existing customers, as it asked lead-qualification questions and couldn't transfer calls, frustrating callers." (YouTube, www.youtube.com/watch?v=L3SC90q6R4I&lc=Ugza1b92dr_C6FEppzt4AaABAg....)
- Buyers said: "Existing customer? Maybe I answer if I have time. Unknown customer? Chances are I call them back" (Facebook groups, www.facebook.com/groups/1538483459790554/posts/3753643271607884/?comme...)

---

4. Booking that allows for job length and drive time

 50 Fair signal · 6 real posts from 5 accounts in 3 places, 10 reactions. Buyers ask for it, the site already has it or something close, and few sellers talk about it.

- Page: callerwho.com/

- Find this line: "It offers only times that fit your shop hours, each tech’s hours and the jobs already booked, so it won’t double-book."
- Replace it with:

> You set how long each kind of job takes and how much drive time to leave between jobs. The AI offers only times that fit both, along with your shop hours, each tech's hours and the jobs already booked. It won't double-book you, and it won't stack jobs back to back so you're late to every one after the first.

- Also: If yes, add to the FAQ under "How calls are handled": Q: How does it know how long a job takes and how far apart my jobs are? A: You set a typical length for each job type and a travel buffer between jobs. The AI offers only times that fit both, so a booked day is one you can actually run.
- Check first: Can an owner set a typical length for each job type and a travel buffer between jobs, and does the AI offer only times that fit both? Use the paste only if yes. Use the text above only if the answer is yes.
- Buyers said: "I need the AI not only to help me make the appointment, but it needs to be routed efficiently for my day and give me adequate time for the service." (YouTube, www.youtube.com/watch?v=gxsCXT60vow&lc=UgzHfx5XFcwoGzdShcx4AaABAg)
- Buyers said: "But if every customer and schedule a time slot back to back you’ll over book yourself, and be late to every job except your first one." (r/Plumbing, www.reddit.com/r/Plumbing/comments/1jtylhq/comment/mlycpcw/)

How you stand apart

Put together from the rest of this report: what the site says set against the 1,766 seller posts compared (every seller post that makes a claim, of the 1,837 read), and against the 7 competitors whose own websites were read (Avoca AI, Sameday, RingCentral, Dialpad, Podium, ServiceTitan, Smith.ai), point by point on what real buyers raise.

Only you say it

- Knows the caller and the house before hello (no seller post compared says it)
- Prepare, Pitch and Close tips on every call (no seller post compared says it)
- Calls routed and alerts sent by home value or distance (no seller post compared says it)
- You take the call, the AI writes the work order (no seller post compared says it)
- Referral fees on jobs you can't take (no seller post compared says it)
- $2 once per new caller, never per minute, never for spam (no seller post compared says it)

Only you answer it clearly

- No time to set it up or babysit it (25 real posts): none of the 7 competitors compared does
- Instant text-back on missed calls (38 real posts): none of the 7 competitors compared does

Against each competitor

- Avoca AI: Your site states the price in full, $49 a line plus $2 per new caller with spam never billed, while Avoca's pages give no price and send buyers to a demo.
- Sameday: Your price is $49 a line with talk time never metered, while Sameday starts at $449 a month with overage billed per minute or per message.
- RingCentral: Your site is written for HVAC, plumbing, electrical and roofing and books jobs on tech calendars, while RingCentral's pages speak to healthcare, finance and retail and say nothing about the trades.
- Dialpad: Your site gives one price for the AI answering, $49 a line plus $2 per new caller, while Dialpad lists its AI agents as custom pricing through sales.
- Podium: Your site states the price outright, while Podium's pricing page offers only a custom quote.
- ServiceTitan: Your site states the price and a trial with nothing charged until the first booked job, while ServiceTitan's pricing page gives no figure and asks buyers to request pricing.
- Smith.ai: Your site is written for HVAC, plumbing, electrical and roofing, while Smith.ai's homepage and examples are built around law firm intake.

Openings nobody takes yet

Buyers raise these and neither your site nor any competitor compared answers them clearly: say them first.

- Voicemail and a callback work fine (75 real posts)
- Whoever answers has to know the trade (27 real posts)
- See who hung up on the AI (3 real posts)

Where a competitor is ahead

- Every vendor promises the same, where's the proof (36 real posts): answered clearly by Avoca AI, Sameday, Podium, ServiceTitan
- It can't schedule like I do (22 real posts): answered clearly by Sameday, ServiceTitan
- Works with the software I already run (18 real posts): answered clearly by Avoca AI, Sameday, ServiceTitan
- Emergencies reach whoever is on call (14 real posts): answered clearly by Sameday
- Says upfront that it's an AI (10 real posts): answered clearly by Sameday, Smith.ai
- Booking that allows for job length and drive time (6 real posts): answered clearly by Sameday

---

The doubt you hear on sales calls

"Callers hang up the moment they hear a robot.":  100 Very strong signal · 82 real posts from 74 accounts in 8 places, 1,495 reactions. It is the most repeated objection: buyers say customers 'realize this isn't a real person and hang up', 'hang up and call the next one', and that older homeowners hate it most, though a few users report most customers accept it once it is tuned and upfront.

Who is really buying

The kinds of real buyer in what was read, judged from what each writer says about themselves. 662 buyer posts of 837 said enough to tell. The site speaks to the plumbers, HVAC techs and electricians who are talking, but one of the largest groups is general small and service business owners who name no trade and whom the site does not address, and very few of the posts come from roofers despite the site's roofing page.

- small and service business owners who do not name a trade: 234 posts from 197 accounts · not named on the site
- contractors and tradespeople, trade not stated, answering their own phone: 160 posts from 138 accounts · named on the site
- plumbers and plumbing shop owners, mostly solo to a few trucks: 112 posts from 78 accounts · named on the site
- HVAC owners, techs and small HVAC shops: 65 posts from 52 accounts · named on the site
- electricians and one-man electrical contractors: 54 posts from 48 accounts · named on the site
- other home-service trades: pest control, landscaping, locksmith, handyman, pressure washing, roofing: 37 posts from 32 accounts · named on the site

What real buyers keep saying

Miss the call, they call the next guy

Problem ·  100 Very strong signal · 118 real posts from 100 accounts in 13 places, 1,056 reactions · covered on the site · most sellers say it

Tradespeople cannot pick up from under a sink, in a panel or on a roof, and callers do not leave voicemail. By the time they call back hours later the job is booked with whoever answered first.

> "Almost nobody leaves a voicemail anymore; they just hang up and call the next contractor on Google." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/smallbusiness/comments/1uyxrhn/did_a_quick_missed_cal...)

> "He's losing his mind because he keeps missing lucrative jobs while he's working, by the time he calls them back 3 hours later, they've got someone else." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/AskElectricians/comments/1p1ojiu/how_do_you_guys_hand...)

> "miss two or three a day at times easy and i figure half of those just go call the next guy on the list." (ContractorTalk, www.contractortalk.com/threads/what-are-you-running-for-quote-follow-u...)

Buyers who see it differently: 26 real posts from 25 accounts say it is not a problem for them, or that they are fine without it.

> "Missed calls are not an issue for me." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/handyman/comments/1r4mmrf/comment/o5clzb8/)

> "If I miss some completely I usually don't worry because there's 20 more coming in the next day lol" (r/Plumbing, www.reddit.com/r/Plumbing/comments/1r5kpbl/comment/o5jk3b5/)

The site says: "Nobody leaves a voicemail anymore, so they hang up and call the next guy."

What to change: Every seller says this, so keep it short. Move quickly to what only this product adds: knowing which of those calls were worth catching.

Callers hang up on a robot

Doubt ·  100 Very strong signal · 104 real posts from 91 accounts in 9 places, 3,805 reactions · covered on the site · some sellers say it

Owners say their customers, older homeowners most of all, hang up and call someone else as soon as they realise it is not a person. Several tried AI answering and went back to people after losing work, including one big-ticket system replacement.

> "I did and lost alot of buisness cause lots of my customers said f this im not talk to a robot it cost me more in loss in work and cost for it than work i obtained from it" (Facebook groups, www.facebook.com/groups/1278151723069384/posts/1956784938539389/?comme...)

> "usually about 30 seconds in the customers would realize this isnt a real person and hang up" (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/mechanics/comments/1u6w20f/anybody_else_dealing_with_...)

> "100% of my customers in a 2 week period told me they would hang up and call someone else if I tried it." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/smallbusiness/comments/1ulegrs/comment/ov438m4/)

Buyers who see it differently: 4 real posts from 4 accounts say it is not a problem for them, or that they are fine without it.

> "My older clients go through the steps and don't even care." (Facebook groups, www.facebook.com/groups/hvacbusinessownerscontractors/posts/1861335295...)

> "Most of our customers have liked it." (Facebook groups, www.facebook.com/groups/hvacbusinessownerscontractors/posts/1861335295...)

The site says: "Some callers don't want to talk to a machine, so you choose who answers first."

What to change: Keep the ring-first and transfer answers, and add what buyers cannot get elsewhere: how many callers stay on the line with the AI, and a named shop saying so. Put the ring-your-phone-first setting next to the demo number so the doubt is answered where it comes up.

Voicemail and a callback work fine

Doubt ·  97 Very strong signal · 75 real posts from 66 accounts in 10 places, 142 reactions · thin on the site · sellers rarely say it

A large group of established tradespeople say they are as busy as they want to be and that people worth working for leave a message or text. Some use the delay on purpose to filter out price shoppers.

> "People just leave a voicemail and I call them back at the end of the day." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/handyman/comments/1r4mmrf/comment/o5ck21g/)

> "I typically wait at least 20 hours to respond to voicemails, that way if it's really an emergency they'll hopefully have called someone else." (r/Plumbing, www.reddit.com/r/Plumbing/comments/1r5kpbl/comment/o5k046a/)

> "I'm not exactly short of work so a £50 a month answering service would be pointless, when my phone contract includes voicemail." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/ukplumbing/comments/1o5i6pc/comment/njb5ulk/)

Buyers who see it differently: 2 real posts from 2 accounts say it is not a problem for them, or that they are fine without it.

The site says: "85% of callers won't leave a voicemail. They call the next guy."

What to change: Speak to the busy owner who wants fewer, better jobs, not more calls. Show that the ring card lets them pick which calls to take, and that they can keep answering themselves with the AI switched off.

What it costs, and what I get billed for

Price ·  99 Very strong signal · 67 real posts from 61 accounts in 7 places, 308 reactions · covered on the site · some sellers say it

Buyers quote per-minute answering bills of $300 to $1,000 a month, receptionists at $1,500 a month or $40k to $58k a year, and being billed for spam calls. Many simply ask 'how much per month?' and complain when pricing is hidden behind a demo.

> "I use a local company mom/pop type deal, rate is $6 per call + $150/month but they have a bunch of plans." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/sweatystartup/comments/1i60ohf/comment/m88tunn/)

> "You mentioned pricing near $700 and it's basically making an overly complicated voicemail system that's likely to frustrate the customer." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/PestControlIndustry/comments/1suojac/comment/oi3s043/)

> "I can't afford $100+ a month for all the pre-built options." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/microsaas/comments/1qu9bof/comment/o73bvdl/)

Buyers who see it differently: none in what was read.

The site says: "$49 a line. Never per minute. Never for spam."

What to change: Put the price next to the numbers buyers already pay: a $300 a month answering service, a $1,500 a month part-timer. Keep the '20 new callers = $89' example high on the page.

After-hours emergencies reach the on-call tech

What they want · 99 Very strong signal · 54 real posts from 50 accounts in 11 places, 333 reactions · covered on the site · some sellers say it

Shops want nights, weekends and overflow covered, with real emergencies reaching whoever is on call and everything else waiting until morning. They complain of services that do not know who is on call or get swamped in a cold snap.

> "We are primarily looking for the service to answer calls on weekends, afterhours, and potentially overflow calls." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/PestControlIndustry/comments/1u434uq/ai_receptionist/)

> "They never know who is the on call plumber dispite getting an email each week." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/PlumbingRepair/comments/1sdv2bc/comment/oelhgvd/)

> "Turns out a ton of HVAC companies and plumbers were also dealing with emergency calls, and the answering service got overwhelmed and had hour long waits for calls." (r/electricians, www.reddit.com/r/electricians/comments/1nlb9ob/whats_your_system_for_c...)

Buyers who see it differently: 5 real posts from 5 accounts say it is not a problem for them, or that they are fine without it.

> "If someone is calling me after hours, they already aren't clientele" (Facebook groups, www.facebook.com/groups/320828968771588/posts/1955480558639746/?commen...)

> "It goes to voicemail and I don't answer my phone after 9 PM" (HVAC-Talk, www.hvac-talk.com/threads/we-miss-a-call-all-the-times-problem.2291482...)

The site says: "Only wake the on-call tech for calls worth waking up for."

What to change: Say what happens if the on-call person does not respond to the text or email, because buyers describe services that keep trying down a list. State that many calls are answered at once during a cold snap or storm.

Book the job, don't just take a message

What they want ·  89 Very strong signal · 43 real posts from 38 accounts in 3 places, 476 reactions · covered on the site · most sellers say it

Owners who paid for answering services say they got a name and number and still did most of the legwork at night. They want the caller put on the real schedule while still on the line.

> "They don't set up the schedule all they do is take the name and information and I end up texting the clients if they respond, then great... but some customers I never even get to contact because I am too busy to call them" (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/smallbusiness/comments/181gn7e/call_answering_service...)

> "If it can actually put them on the schedule they stay on the line.. if it just takes a message they're calling the next guy." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/voiceagents/comments/1xgl9hn/be_honest_would_you_hang...)

> "I tried answering services, we out grew them and thin 6 months. You still have to do 3/4 of the leg work!" (Facebook groups, www.facebook.com/groups/bluecollarmillionaire/posts/1379639160836555/?...)

Buyers who see it differently: 3 real posts from 3 accounts say it is not a problem for them, or that they are fine without it.

> "Yes, for me v/m works well." (Mike Holt Forums, forums.mikeholt.com/threads/do-you-still-use-voicemail-do-you-think-th...)

> "No - The phrase "Leave a message and I'll call back" means I'll select the gap" (Mike Holt Forums, forums.mikeholt.com/threads/do-you-still-use-voicemail-do-you-think-th...)

The site says: "It books the job. It doesn't just take a message."

What to change: The claim is common, so prove it instead of repeating it. The recorded service call and the tech-calendar check are the evidence; keep them beside the claim.

It will say something wrong

Doubt ·  100 Very strong signal · 42 real posts from 41 accounts in 8 places, 413 reactions · covered on the site · some sellers say it

Buyers report AI and answering services quoting the wrong rate, promising free estimates, guessing a diagnosis or looping when a caller goes off script. They say one confident wrong answer loses the client for good.

> "Artificial call booking thing says "🤦 hey it's probably the compressor" and then cracks jokes with the customer about lottery tickets??" (r/HVAC, www.reddit.com/r/HVAC/comments/1uauqfy/artificial_booking_agent_making...)

> "The failure mode that would cost you a client is a bot that sounds confident about something it got wrong." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/smallbusinessUS/comments/1w2pd29/comment/p6vflav/)

> "it didn't redirect, didn't escalate, just kept looping." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/AIAssisted/comments/1xslb87/comment/19sfo5kd9dyyo/)

Buyers who see it differently: none in what was read.

The site says: "If your book doesn't cover it, it says it doesn't know."

What to change: Add what it does with an angry caller or a complaint, since that is the case buyers name most. Say plainly that it never diagnoses.

Spam, sales calls and price shoppers

Problem ·  95 Very strong signal · 41 real posts from 37 accounts in 8 places, 105 reactions · covered on the site · some sellers say it

Owners describe dozens of spam and sales calls a day, hagglers who open with what their mate charges, and quotes given to people who cannot afford the work. Several say screening by phone questions does not really work.

> "I get about 9 calls a week from people cold calling selling this service" (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/ukplumbing/comments/1ssdnlo/comment/ohl6mvr/)

> "Some people just have free time to contact different companies to haggle like they're ordering a cup of coffee in a market" (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/smallbusiness/comments/1xk0aa1/comment/19rxjhodaukg1/)

> "There isn't enough money in the world for someone to call me at 1 am and ask how much" (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/handyman/comments/1n5sds2/comment/nbuvnvw/)

Buyers who see it differently: none in what was read.

The site says: "Questions alone don’t spot a price shopper. Before hello, the ring card shows owner or renter, home value and distance, and you keep the say on which jobs you take."

What to change: This is where the site already stands apart; tie the ring card to the buyers' own complaint that phone screening 'is not practical'. Keep the line that spam is never billed close to it.

Every vendor promises the same, where's the proof

Doubt ·  96 Very strong signal · 36 real posts from 34 accounts in 5 places, 235 reactions · thin on the site · some sellers say it

Buyers say the websites and demos blur together, the forums are flooded with pitches, and nobody shows real results. They ask for real users in their trade, real calls and honest numbers.

> "I’m comparing a few AI answering service options, but every website seems to promise the same thing." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/AIAssisted/comments/1xslb87/which_answering_service_i...)

> "As the others have said, they all over-promise and under-deliver." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/smallbusiness/comments/17zxn2w/comment/ka3kty8/)

> "What held up and what fell apart when real customers called in?" (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/aiagents/comments/1vx5j2b/which_ai_receptionist_actua...)

Buyers who see it differently: none in what was read.

The site says: "Don’t take our word for it. Call the demo line for your trade, free, no signup."

What to change: The demo lines and the pay-after-first-booked-job trial are strong; add named shops with their trade and truck count. Use real recorded calls rather than the composite case study and example values.

Whoever answers has to know the trade

What they want ·  93 Very strong signal · 27 real posts from 26 accounts in 6 places, 2,810 reactions · thin on the site · some sellers say it

Owners say call takers who do not know plumbing or HVAC cannot answer callers' questions, tell them 'I have no idea' and are no better than voicemail. They want trade lingo understood and the right questions asked.

> "Problem with call answerer's is they can't answer customer questions, because they don't know plumbing." (r/Plumbing, www.reddit.com/r/Plumbing/comments/1jrxhsf/comment/mlm6djz/)

> "A pretty voice who answers the phone but can't answer the questions of my callers is not worth paying for." (Mike Holt Forums, forums.mikeholt.com/threads/answering-service.48418/#part-7)

> "You either pay some cold call center 2k a month to answer your calls, but they will work with thousands other companies, so they won't be able to respond to some niche questions." (PlumbingZone, www.plumbingzone.com/threads/answering-services.91015/post-1321935)

Buyers who see it differently: none in what was read.

The site says: "Generic answering services don't speak HVAC"

What to change: List the questions it asks on a plumbing, HVAC, electrical and roofing call, and what it says when a caller asks something technical. The house facts on the card do the scoping buyers say only a phone conversation can do; make that link explicit.

No time to set it up or babysit it

Doubt · 91 Very strong signal · 25 real posts from 23 accounts in 6 places, 537 reactions · covered on the site · some sellers say it

Owners say they have zero time to train or oversee an AI, and those who tried one describe weeks of tuning and checking call records. They want it working without learning software.

> "My biggest caveat: I have zero time to train up and oversee an AI receptionist." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/RoofingSales/comments/1vtogio/need_help_with_inbound_...)

> "Honestly, it took about 2 weeks to get "right", because you can program the Machine Learning Module with AVOCA." (r/Plumbing, www.reddit.com/r/Plumbing/comments/1k11u06/comment/mqe30pg/)

> "The key thing is checking all call records often because it can say dumb or crazy things from time to time." (Facebook groups, www.facebook.com/groups/hvacbusinessownerscontractors/posts/1861335295...)

Buyers who see it differently: 1 real post from 1 account say it is not a problem for them, or that they are fine without it.

> "took us maybe an afternoon to configure the flows, nothing crazy" (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/AIReceptionists/comments/1rw7t37/comment/oayi9i1/)

The site says: "Setup takes a few minutes, all by talking, and later you change a setting just by telling Gunner, the setup assistant."

What to change: Keep it, and say honestly what the first week looks like, since buyers who heard 'five minutes' elsewhere spent two weeks tuning. The Needs Attention list is the answer to 'babysitting'; say so.

It can't schedule like I do

Doubt ·  84 Very strong signal · 22 real posts from 17 accounts in 5 places, 165 reactions · thin on the site · sellers rarely say it

Plumbers and HVAC techs say jobs run hours over, travel areas are wide, and back-to-back slots make them late all day. They also fear it will accept jobs they would never take.

> "But if every customer and schedule a time slot back to back you'll over book yourself, and be late to every job except your first one." (r/Plumbing, www.reddit.com/r/Plumbing/comments/1jtylhq/comment/mlycpcw/)

> "It won't know how to schedule the appointment for a quote efficiently based on where the caller is located and where I will be." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/handyman/comments/1r0tb58/comment/o4ko3ug/)

> "Having an ai putting calls into the schedule that may or may not be doable in the alloted time just sounds like a nightmare to me." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/hvacadvice/comments/1xjczma/comment/19rvn2ck9rg9t/)

Buyers who see it differently: none in what was read.

The site says: "It offers only times that fit your shop hours, each tech's hours and the jobs already booked, so it won't double-book."

What to change: Explain how long a booked slot is, how drive time between jobs is handled, and how an owner stops it taking work they do not want. Few sellers talk about this, and the house facts on the ring card are the answer to 'I need to know the pipes and the age of the house first'.

Features wanted

Instant text-back on missed calls

 93 Very strong signal · 38 real posts from 32 accounts in 7 places, 126 reactions · the site says they offer it · most sellers say it

The most praised fix among working tradespeople: a text within a minute that says they are on a job and asks for the problem and address. They say it keeps the caller from dialling the next shop.

> "When I'm busy, I set up an automatic text that says that I'm currently busy working and to text me their problem or project and I'll call back later in the day." (Facebook groups, www.facebook.com/groups/757contractors/posts/1556370662171269/?comment...)

> "Instant callback texts alone reduced missed leads a lot for us." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/AIForBusinessOwner/comments/1tcn7zv/comment/omm0xew/)

> "A simple missed-call text-back covers most of the use case" (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/Entrepreneur/comments/1sn9mpc/comment/ogl2oje/)

Why it fits: It runs on the same business number the AI already answers and texts on.

How to work it in: It sits in an FAQ answer and a feature list; give it a visible block showing the text thread carrying on into a booked job.

How to say it on the site: Miss the call, the text goes out and books it. The reply comes from your business number, and if they answer, the same AI books the job on your calendar.

Get a real person when the caller asks

 98 Very strong signal · 38 real posts from 36 accounts in 5 places, 2,818 reactions · the site says they offer it · some sellers say it

Buyers want a fast, working path to a human for urgent, upset or complicated calls. Several quit tools that could not transfer.

> "Agree, that's why I'd like to know, before committing to one, how it behaves when it receives a complaint or the customer asks to speak to a real person, would it redirect the call automatically?" (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/AIAssisted/comments/1xslb87/comment/19sfkgt7kluth/)

> "The first hello should be a human, or at least a quick "press 0 for a person" that actually works." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/smallbusiness/comments/1xrq0if/comment/19sdos4ew4a2r/)

> "I am looking for an ai receptionist that has all the normal features (e.g. 24/7 hour pick up, metrics,multilingual, etc) but more importantly gives live notifications when a call is underway and the caller wants to speak with a human." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/automation/comments/1nowdoj/ai_receptionist/)

Why it fits: Transfer, listen-in and take-over are already part of the phone system.

How to work it in: Say what happens when a caller asks for a person outside open hours, and show the one-tap take-over in the app.

How to say it on the site: Ask for a person, get a person. The AI transfers when the caller asks, and you can listen in and take over any call with one tap.

Works with the software I already run

 85 Very strong signal · 18 real posts from 18 accounts in 5 places, 181 reactions · the site has something close: is all of it offered? · some sellers say it

Buyers ask whether it books straight into ServiceTitan, their CRM or their dispatching software. They call tools that do not connect 'glorified voicemails'.

> "They're glorified voicemails since they don't connect to the crm like you said." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/AIReceptionists/comments/1tc6od5/comment/olnsv49/)

> "Does the ai platform integrate with your CRM and book the appointments?" (Facebook groups, www.facebook.com/groups/hvacbusinessownerscontractors/posts/1602564114...)

> "Does anyone use Service Titan and have AI phone answering and booking?" (Facebook groups, www.facebook.com/groups/455916369530577/posts/1241330010989205/)

Why it fits: Booked jobs are already sent out to several systems and by webhook.

How to work it in: ServiceTitan is the name buyers ask about most and the site does not list it; add it, or say plainly how those shops connect through the calendar feed and webhooks.

How to say it once you offer it: The job lands in the system you already run. Booked jobs go to Jobber, Housecall Pro, Google Calendar, monday.com and QuickBooks, with nothing retyped.

My phone rings first, the AI only catches misses

 81 Very strong signal · 17 real posts from 16 accounts in 6 places, 64 reactions · the site says they offer it · some sellers say it

Many owners want to keep answering themselves and have the AI pick up only after a few rings, after hours or when lines are busy. They trust it more as overflow than as the main line.

> "Can the trigger be that if the phone to my office ringing 4 times and nobody picked up the phone?" (YouTube, www.youtube.com/watch?v=V83zTOADdJM&lc=Ugx3ULGFQ-I22tHFJ014AaABAg)

> "I'd trust it a lot more for after hours overflow than as a primary line, capturing the plumbing emergency type call at 2am beats voicemail every time" (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/smallbusinessUS/comments/1w2pd29/comment/p6z6q0i/)

> "I set it up to forward the call to the AI when I'm on the go or busy." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/AIReceptionists/comments/1tikir4/comment/os9b0xj/)

Why it fits: Each line can already be set to Person, AI, Voicemail or ring-first.

How to work it in: Put it near the top for the owner who says 'customers want me', with the ring count shown as a simple setting.

How to say it on the site: You answer first. The AI only takes what you can't. Set your phone to ring 1 to 10 times before the AI picks up, or switch it off in one tap.

Emergencies reach whoever is on call

 78 Strong signal · 14 real posts from 14 accounts in 5 places, 41 reactions · the site has something close: is all of it offered? · some sellers say it

Shops want real emergencies passed to the on-call tech at once and routine calls held for morning. Some describe services that call down an on-call list until someone answers.

> "I set up a simple AI answering system that picks up 24/7, asks a few screening questions (basic stuff like name, issue, address), and then sends a text or email summary to the tech on duty." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/ProHVACR/comments/1lhd0ux/comment/n536im6/)

> "Both companies used an answering service that would contact the guy on call." (Mike Holt Forums, forums.mikeholt.com/threads/how-you-handle-emergency-calls.49555/)

> "Wouldnt AI agents be able to detect urgency and say page you in case of emergency, or schedule follow up if not?" (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/hvacpeople/comments/1ra19a9/comment/o74qcud/)

Why it fits: On-call status and emergency rules are already set per tech and per line.

How to work it in: The site describes a text or email alert; add an option to phone the on-call list in order until someone accepts, and say what happens when nobody responds.

How to say it once you offer it: The burst pipe reaches your on-call tech. The faucet waits. Emergencies go to whoever is on call while the caller is still on the line, and it keeps trying until someone picks up.

Says upfront that it's an AI

 62 Strong signal · 10 real posts from 10 accounts in 3 places, 24 reactions · the site has something close: is all of it offered? · some sellers say it

Owners who run AI lines say callers forgive a robot for being a robot but not for pretending. Skeptics want clear disclosure and a recording notice.

> "People forgive a robot for being a robot, they don't forgive it for pretending." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/smallbusiness/comments/1ulegrs/comment/ov3wp9y/)

> "Mine says it in the first sentence." (Facebook groups, www.facebook.com/groups/hvacbusinessownerscontractors/posts/1602564114...)

> "The tool im using seems so real, but we had to inform that its an AI, due to regulations" (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/AIReceptionists/comments/1w4hnh7/comment/p7blxby/)

Why it fits: The greeting and the recording notice are already set per line.

How to work it in: Offer a one-switch greeting that names itself as the shop's AI assistant in the first sentence, alongside the existing recording notice.

How to say it once you offer it: It says it's an AI. Then it books the job. One switch makes the greeting upfront, so nobody feels tricked.

Treats regulars differently from new callers

 64 Strong signal · 9 real posts from 9 accounts in 4 places, 13 reactions · the site says they offer it · sellers rarely say it

Buyers complain of AI asking existing customers lead-qualifying questions, and many only want to pick up for people they know. They want returning customers recognised and routed differently.

> "Issues began when it was used for after-hours and existing customers, as it asked lead-qualification questions and couldn’t transfer calls, frustrating callers." (YouTube, www.youtube.com/watch?v=L3SC90q6R4I&lc=Ugza1b92dr_C6FEppzt4AaABAg....)

> "Existing customer? Maybe I answer if I have time. Unknown customer? Chances are I call them back" (Facebook groups, www.facebook.com/groups/1538483459790554/posts/3753643271607884/?comme...)

> "Very few customers get out on the list that will bypass my sleep mode but there are a couple. Anyone else gets a voicemail." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/handyman/comments/1n5sds2/comment/nbuuyrm/)

Why it fits: Customer history is already on the ring card and the AI already greets known callers by name.

How to work it in: Tell it as a story: a regular calls, the phone sounds different, the card shows their past jobs and any unpaid invoice.

How to say it on the site: Your regulars don't get treated like strangers. Existing customers ring with their own tone and are greeted by name, with their past jobs on screen before you answer.

Spam and sales calls filtered, never billed

 61 Strong signal · 8 real posts from 8 accounts in 4 places, 9 reactions · the site says they offer it · some sellers say it

Owners are worn down by 25 to 40 spam calls a day and by being billed for them. They want junk turned away before it rings them.

> "The straw that broke the camel's back is when we started getting billed for spam & rotary calls." (Facebook groups, www.facebook.com/groups/hvacbusinessownerscontractors/posts/1549700169...)

> "I wish I could eliminate all the telemarketers tring to sell me junk." (Electrical Contractor Network forums, www.electrical-contractor.net/forums/ubbthreads.php/topics/155325/2/ce...)

> "I use it personally to screen my spam calls and collect real info and text back also instant." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/Tech4LocalBusiness/comments/1rrlze1/comment/ozr8l5d/)

Why it fits: The spam filter and the no-charge rule are part of the line and the pricing.

How to work it in: Pair the press-7 filter and the never-billed list in one block aimed at the owner who was billed for robocalls.

How to say it on the site: Robocalls don't ring your phone. And you never pay for one. Spam, sales calls, wrong numbers and hang-ups cost nothing; you pay $2 only the first time a real new caller reaches you.

Booking that allows for job length and drive time

 50 Fair signal · 6 real posts from 5 accounts in 3 places, 10 reactions · the site has something close: is all of it offered? · sellers rarely say it

Tradespeople say back-to-back slots ignore how long jobs really run and how far apart they are. They want bookings that fit the route and leave enough time.

> "I need the AI not only to help me make the appointment, but it needs to be routed efficiently for my day and give me adequate time for the service." (YouTube, www.youtube.com/watch?v=gxsCXT60vow&lc=UgzHfx5XFcwoGzdShcx4AaABAg)

> "But if every customer and schedule a time slot back to back you'll over book yourself, and be late to every job except your first one." (r/Plumbing, www.reddit.com/r/Plumbing/comments/1jtylhq/comment/mlycpcw/)

> "When in reality you are at the job for 2-3 hrs longer." (r/Plumbing, www.reddit.com/r/Plumbing/comments/1jtylhq/comment/mlz6mnt/)

Why it fits: The system already knows each caller's drive time, sets arrival windows and suggests a stop order.

How to work it in: Let the owner set a typical duration per job type and a travel buffer, and have the AI offer only slots that fit both. Then say so on the booking section.

How to say it once you offer it: It won't stack you back to back across town. It books by how long the job runs and the drive between stops, inside each tech's hours.

See who hung up on the AI

 46 Fair signal · 3 real posts from 3 accounts in 2 places, 229 reactions · the site has something close: is all of it offered? · sellers rarely say it

Users worry callers leave silently and they would never know they lost them. They want hang-ups visible so someone can follow up.

> "If other people just hang up, we'd have no idea we were losing them." (Reddit, www.reddit.com/r/PickAorB/comments/1wiyz2s/comment/paenbsd/)

> "The problem is all the people who hang up or dont give feed back and simply dont call back." (Facebook groups, www.facebook.com/groups/hvacbusinessownerscontractors/posts/1861335295...)

Why it fits: Every call is already recorded and graded, and missed calls already land in the Needs Attention list.

How to work it in: Add 'hung up on the AI' as an outcome that drops into Needs Attention with a call-back button, and show the count in the weekly owner email.

How to say it once you offer it: If a caller hangs up on the AI, you'll know. Every hang-up lands in your Needs Attention list with the number and a Call button.

What makes them start looking

- After-hours calls piling up or time away (20 real posts). Night and weekend leads growing, a nonstop Saturday, or two weeks away with nobody to cover. A line to open with: "Ten calls came in after five. Who answered them?"
- The answering service let them down (15 real posts). Seven rings before pickup, a caller left on hold for 12 minutes, a bill for spam calls, or the local service sold and gone downhill. A line to open with: "Seven rings, twelve minutes on hold and a bill for the robocalls. Time to fire the answering service."
- The person on the phone is gone or swamped (15 real posts). The wife, the girlfriend, dad, the dispatcher or the front desk can no longer cover the phone or cannot keep up. A line to open with: "When whoever used to answer the phone can't anymore."
- Counting the missed calls (10 real posts). Owners pull the call log or tally a week and are shocked: 47 in a month, 18 in a day, 20 a week that never called back. A line to open with: "You counted the missed calls. Now find out which ones were worth catching."
- Going solo or adding a truck (10 real posts). A new one-person shop or a jump from one truck to two means nobody is free to answer and an office hire is not yet affordable. A line to open with: "Just you and the truck? Your phone still gets answered."
- Losing one big job to a missed call (5 real posts). A single lost install or large lead, found out afterwards, is what makes the cost real. A line to open with: "The $4k install went to the guy who picked up."

What buyers say about the alternatives

- Voicemail and calling back (146 real posts). They like: Free and already there. Established tradespeople say serious customers leave a message, and the delay filters out price shoppers. They dislike: Most callers do not leave a message and book someone else before the callback; a full or ignored voicemail looks bad. How to answer it: Keep voicemail (it is built in and written out) and add the ring card, so you can see which caller is worth a quick pickup; a missed caller gets a text from your business number.
- Live answering service (112 real posts). They like: A real person answers, takes details by script and can reach the on-call tech; good local ones are reliable and cheap. They dislike: Only takes messages, gives wrong rates and information, slow pickup and holds, high turnover and retraining, per-minute bills that include spam. How to answer it: It books the job on your techs' calendars instead of taking a message, quotes only from your price book, never bills for spam or by the minute, and can run alongside your service for a head-to-head week.

- Hiring a receptionist, dispatcher or office manager (108 real posts). They like: Knows the customers and the trade, answers questions on the spot, and does much more than the phone; many call it their best hire. They dislike: $1,500 a month part-time up to $40k to $58k a year, no cover nights, weekends or sick days, and out of reach for one or two trucks. How to answer it: Until you can afford the hire it is $49 a line plus $2 per new caller; once you have one, she keeps answering with the caller's details on screen and the AI covers nights, weekends and overflow.
- Answering it myself or forwarding to my cell (84 real posts). They like: Customers get the owner directly, and those who always pick up say that is how they win work; headsets and earbuds make it workable. They dislike: Constant interruptions on paid jobs, dropped calls, never off duty, and calls still missed on ladders and in crawlspaces. How to answer it: Keep answering: your phone rings first with the caller's details on screen, the AI writes up the work order when you hang up, and it only picks up the calls you cannot get to.
- Missed-call text-back on its own (38 real posts). They like: Cheap and simple, and it recovers a good share of missed callers; many say it solved most of the problem without AI. They dislike: Only buys time, the owner still has to call back, and it does nothing for an after-hours emergency or a landline caller. How to answer it: Text-back is included, and when the caller replies the same AI carries on by text and books the job, so there is no callback to make.
- Offshore or remote call staff (23 real posts). They like: Cheap at $4 to $7 an hour, long hours, and a real human who can do intake and scheduling. They dislike: Hard to understand, weak on local geography and distances, takes time to train and manage. How to answer it: It already knows the caller's address and drive time from your shop, answers from what you taught it the same way every time, and comes trained from your website.
- Avoca (18 real posts). They like: Well regarded for after-hours and overflow, with good ServiceTitan integration; some call it one of their best decisions. They dislike: Price hard to justify, a learning curve and weeks of tuning, slow support for some, and customers who disliked the voice. How to answer it: For the one-to-five truck shop: $49 a line with no setup fee, set up in a few minutes by talking, and nothing charged until your first booked job plus seven days.
- Jobber AI Receptionist (10 real posts). They like: Built into software they already use, and some found the demo better than expected. They dislike: Cannot text from the business number without porting, awkward scripted phrasing, settings hard to find, and a feeling of being locked into the subscription. How to answer it: Calls and texts run on your own business number, jobs still sync to Jobber, the wording is yours to set, and monthly has no contract.

What only you say

Keep these in front. They are on the site, and the AI found them in none, or almost none, of the 1,766 seller posts compared (every seller post that makes a claim, of the 1,837 read). That is a finding about this sample, not about every competitor: check a competitor's own site before calling a claim unique.

- Knows the caller and the house before hello (no seller post compared says it). On the site: "While it rings, your phone shows the caller’s name, whether they live in a $2M home or rent a studio, the drive time, the year the house was built" Owners say they cannot tell a real job from a price shopper over the phone and that screening questions do not work; the card shows it before they pick up. A line that ties it to the buyer: "We show you the caller's name, home and property details from our proprietary property database while the phone is still ringing, so you know which calls are worth putting your tools down for."
- Prepare, Pitch and Close tips on every call (no seller post compared says it). On the site: "1955 house: galvanized pipe. Bring the old-pipe fittings. No second trip." Schedulers say they need to talk to the customer to learn the pipes and the age of the house before booking; the card gives them that without the conversation. A line that ties it to the buyer: "We tell your tech what to bring and what to quote from the age and size of the house, so nobody has to quiz the customer about their pipes before the job is booked."
- Calls routed and alerts sent by home value or distance (no seller post compared says it). On the site: "Per-line rules send a call to a person, the AI or voicemail based on the caller’s home value or how many miles they are from the shop." Owners want a real person on high-value callers and to be woken only for calls that matter; one lost a full system replacement when the AI took the call. A line that ties it to the buyer: "We ring a person first when the caller's home value or distance says so, so your biggest jobs get a human and your on-call tech sleeps through the dripping faucets."
- You take the call, the AI writes the work order (no seller post compared says it). On the site: "When you take the call yourself, the AI listens in the background, writes up the work order and texts your customer the confirmation." Owners who insist customers want them personally still lose track of who called and what was said while working; this keeps the personal call and removes the write-up. A line that ties it to the buyer: "We write up the job and text the customer after you hang up, so you can keep answering your own phone without writing anything down."
- Referral fees on jobs you can't take (no seller post compared says it). On the site: "Now the AI offers the caller one of your referral partners — a shop that has agreed to pay you a fee on every job you send them." Booked-out contractors talk about subbing jobs out or bouncing calls to another company so the work still pays; no seller offers it. A line that ties it to the buyer: "We hand the calls you can't take to your referral partners and log the fee, so being booked solid still pays."

- $2 once per new caller, never per minute, never for spam (no seller post compared says it). On the site: "You pay $2 only the first time a new caller reaches you." Buyers left answering services over per-minute bills and being charged for spam and robocalls. A line that ties it to the buyer: "We charge $49 a line and $2 only the first time a new caller reaches you, so long calls, repeat callers and robocalls never show up on your bill."

Head to head

Each competitor's own website, read page by page and set against what real buyers raised. Their words are copied from their pages; the buyer counts come from the posts. Up to 6 pages of each competitor's site were read (as many as 6 here), each page to its end.

Most of the field answers the missed call and books the appointment, but few speak to what buyers fear most. Three of the 7 (Avoca, Podium, ServiceTitan) publish no price, and Sameday's plans start at $449 a month with per-minute overage, so your $49 a line with spam never billed stands out. None of the 7 says anything to the tradesperson who thinks voicemail and a callback work fine, and none clearly shows who hung up on the AI. Your site is thin on both, so that opening is unclaimed. Change proof first: four of the 7 (Avoca, Sameday, Podium, ServiceTitan) show named trade customers with real numbers, while your site offers a demo line and a composite case study. Put real shops, real calls and real results on the page.

Openings: buyers raise these and no competitor here answers them clearly

- Voicemail and a callback work fine (75 real posts)
- Whoever answers has to know the trade (27 real posts)
- No time to set it up or babysit it (25 real posts)
- Instant text-back on missed calls (38 real posts)
- See who hung up on the AI (3 real posts)

Where a competitor answers buyers and your site does not yet

- Every vendor promises the same, where's the proof: answered by Avoca AI, Sameday, Podium, ServiceTitan
- It can't schedule like I do: answered by Sameday, ServiceTitan
- Works with the software I already run: answered by Avoca AI, Sameday, ServiceTitan
- Emergencies reach whoever is on call: answered by Sameday
- Says upfront that it's an AI: answered by Sameday, Smith.ai
- Booking that allows for job length and drive time: answered by Sameday

What buyers raise	You	Avoca AI	Sameday	RingCentral	Dialpad	Podium	ServiceTitan	Smith.ai
Miss the call, they call the next guy	yes	yes	yes	yes	weakly	yes	yes	yes
Callers hang up on a robot	yes	weakly	weakly	no	weakly	weakly	no	yes
Voicemail and a callback work fine	weakly	no	no	no	no	no	no	no
What it costs, and what I get billed for	yes	no	yes	weakly	weakly	weakly	weakly	yes
After-hours emergencies reach the on-call tech	yes	weakly	yes	weakly	no	weakly	no	weakly
Book the job, don't just take a message	yes	yes	yes	weakly	weakly	yes	yes	yes
It will say something wrong	yes	weakly	weakly	weakly	weakly	yes	no	yes
Spam, sales calls and price shoppers	yes	no	no	no	weakly	no	no	yes
Every vendor promises the same, where's the proof	weakly	yes	yes	weakly	weakly	yes	yes	weakly

What buyers raise	You	Avoca AI	Sameday	RingCentral	Dialpad	Podium	ServiceTitan	Smith.ai
Whoever answers has to know the trade	weakly	weakly	weakly	no	no	weakly	weakly	weakly
No time to set it up or babysit it	yes	no	weakly	weakly	weakly	weakly	no	weakly
It can't schedule like I do	weakly	no	yes	no	no	no	yes	no
Instant text-back on missed calls	yes	no	weakly	weakly	no	weakly	no	weakly
Get a real person when the caller asks	yes	weakly	yes	yes	yes	weakly	no	yes
Works with the software I already run	weakly	yes	yes	weakly	weakly	weakly	yes	weakly
My phone rings first, the AI only catches misses	yes	weakly	yes	no	no	weakly	no	yes
Emergencies reach whoever is on call	weakly	weakly	yes	no	no	no	no	weakly
Says upfront that it's an AI	weakly	no	yes	no	no	no	no	yes
Treats regulars differently from new callers	yes	no	weakly	no	no	weakly	weakly	yes

What buyers raise	You	Avoca AI	Sameday	RingCentral	Dialpad	Podium	ServiceTitan	Smith.ai
Spam and sales calls filtered, never billed	yes	no	no	no	weakly	no	no	yes
Booking that allows for job length and drive time	weakly	no	yes	no	no	no	weakly	no
See who hung up on the AI	weakly	no	weakly	no	no	no	no	weakly

yes = answers it clearly, weakly = touches it in other words, no = says nothing about it.

Avoca AI (avoca.ai)

No price on its site · For: Service businesses across the trades, including multi-brand operators · 17 real buyers named it · Listed by you.

What it leads with: Avoca leads with an AI front office that answers every call and fills the dispatch board for service businesses. ("Always-on agents that answer every call, fill every board, and keep your team focused on the work that matters.")

Its main claims, in its own words:

- Books jobs 24/7: "Answer every call, text, and chat. Book jobs 24/7 without missing a lead."
- ServiceTitan certified: "ServiceTitan Certified App"
- Outbound campaigns: "Multi-channel drip campaigns across SMS and calls that re-engage past customers and fill your board."
- Call scoring and coaching: "Score every call, surface missed opportunities, and give managers real-time visibility."
- Widely used: "Trusted by 1,000+ Service Leaders"
- Security: "SOC 2 Certified"

Buyers like: Works well for overflow and after hours once tuned, and customers like it.

Buyers dislike: Takes time to learn and adjust, and some see it as the same as the others.

Where you are ahead:

- Your site states the price in full, $49 a line plus $2 per new caller with spam never billed, while Avoca's pages give no price and send buyers to a demo.

- Your site answers the no-time-to-set-up worry with a few minutes of setup by talking, while Avoca's pages say nothing on setup and buyers say it takes time to learn and adjust.
- Your site spells out ring-first rules, transfers on request and spam filtering, while Avoca's pages touch the human path only in passing and say nothing on spam.

Where they are ahead:

- Avoca shows named trade customers with real numbers, such as a booking rate going from 55% to 90%, where your site offers a demo line and a composite case study.
- Avoca is a ServiceTitan Certified App with deep CRM integration, and your site does not list ServiceTitan among the software it syncs with.

What to say to a buyer weighing Avoca AI: CallerWho shows its price up front: $49 a month per line plus $2 the first time a new caller reaches you, no setup fee, and nothing charged until your first booked job plus seven days. You can call the demo line for your trade right now with no signup and be live in a few minutes.

Sameday (gosameday.com)

Price on its site: from $449 a month · For: Home service businesses across the trades · No real buyer named it · Listed by you.

What it leads with: Sameday leads with one AI front office platform where office staff, technicians and AI work together to book more jobs. ("One platform where your CSRs, technicians, and AI work together to book more jobs and grow revenue.")

Its main claims, in its own words:

- Answers 24/7 your way: "Answers 24/7 in your greeting, tone, and rules"
- Books into your schedule: "Books directly into your schedule and FSM"
- Hands off to a human: "Escalates to a human the moment it should"
- Skill and zone aware scheduling: "Skill- and zone-aware slot selection"
- ServiceTitan certified: "Sameday is a Certified ServiceTitan app and also writes jobs into other field-service tools listed on the integrations page."
- Built-in phone system: "Numbers, routing, voicemail, and texting are all built in, so the phone bill and the software bill become the same bill."

Where you are ahead:

- Your price is $49 a line with talk time never metered, while Sameday starts at $449 a month with overage billed per minute or per message.
- Your site says spam, robocalls and wrong numbers are never billed and can be filtered before they ring, while Sameday's pages say nothing on spam or price shoppers.
- Buyers can call your demo line or start a trial with no sales call, while Sameday's pages route sign-up through booking a demo.

Where they are ahead:

- Sameday is a Certified ServiceTitan app and names more field service tools, while your site lists Jobber, Housecall Pro, Google Calendar, monday.com and QuickBooks but not ServiceTitan.
- Sameday says booked jobs are matched to technician skills, service areas and drive time, while your booking copy covers hours, skills and workload but not drive time between jobs.
- Sameday shows named trade customers with figures and tells owners they can have the AI identify itself outright, two points your site only touches.

What to say to a buyer weighing Sameday: CallerWho costs $49 a month per line plus $2 the first time a new caller reaches you, and talk time is never metered, so a long call costs the same as a short one. Spam and repeat callers are never charged, and you can try it on your own calls with nothing charged until your first booked job plus seven days.

RingCentral (ringcentral.com)

Price on its site: AI Receptionist starts at $39; RingEX phone plans from $20 per user a month paid annually · For: Businesses of all sizes, with healthcare, finance, education, retail and government named · 2 real buyers named it · Listed by you.

What it leads with: RingCentral leads with a general voice AI and business phone platform for companies of all sizes. ("The Agentic Voice AI platform to drive customer outcomes")

Its main claims, in its own words:

- AI Receptionist answers 24/7: "Answers and routes calls and texts 24/7, automates FAQs, schedules appointments, captures leads, and passes callers to live agents with full context."
- Automatic scheduling: "Book seamlessly without back-and-forth."
- Reliability: "99.999% Availability"
- Scale: "Loved by over 600,000 businesses of all sizes"
- Many integrations: "Leverage over 500 pre-built integrations or build custom integrations with our open APIs."
- Quick start: "No configuration required beyond personalization"

Where you are ahead:

- Your site is written for HVAC, plumbing, electrical and roofing and books jobs on tech calendars, while RingCentral's pages speak to healthcare, finance and retail and say nothing about the trades.
- Your site covers after-hours emergencies reaching the on-call person and ringing your own phone first, and RingCentral's pages are silent on both.
- Your site says spam is filtered and never billed, while RingCentral's pages say nothing about spam or price shoppers.

Where they are ahead:

- RingCentral backs its AI receptionist with a named customer and a measured result, and cites 600,000 businesses and 99.999% availability, where your site has no named customer results.

What to say to a buyer weighing RingCentral: CallerWho is built for HVAC, plumbing, electrical and roofing shops: it books the job on your techs' real calendars, alerts your on-call people only for emergencies, and can ring your phone first. It is $49 a line with spam never billed.

Dialpad (dialpad.com)

Price on its site: Connect phone plans from $15 a user a month; AI agents are custom priced · For: Support, sales and contact center teams, up to enterprise scale · 1 real buyer named it · Listed by you.

What it leads with: Dialpad leads with an AI customer experience platform that joins AI agents, contact center, sales and business phone. ("The AI platform for customer experience")

Its main claims, in its own words:

- AI voice and digital agents: "An agentic platform for coordinated action with prebuilt and custom AI agents."
- AI contact center: "Contact center solution with real-time AI to help your team achieve impressive customer experiences."
- Satisfaction scored on every call: "Collect CSAT scores on 100% of customer calls"
- Live coaching for agents: "Give agents guidance while conversations are still happening"
- Pay only when AI does work: "If no work is done, you’re not charged"
- Enterprise platform: "One place for every conversation and workflow, with enterprise-grade security, reliability, and control."

Where you are ahead:

- Your site gives one price for the AI answering, $49 a line plus $2 per new caller, while Dialpad lists its AI agents as custom pricing through sales.
- Your site books the job on tech calendars and sends after-hours emergencies to on-call people, and Dialpad's pages say nothing on either for a trade shop.
- Your site offers missed-call text-back and ring-first with the AI as backup, which Dialpad's pages do not mention.

Where they are ahead:

- Dialpad shows named customers describing results, which your site does not, though none of them are trade shops.

What to say to a buyer weighing Dialpad: CallerWho is a phone system built for the trades: the AI answers 24/7, books the job on your techs' calendars and texts the confirmation and pay link. The price is on the page at $49 a line plus $2 per new caller, with no charge for spam.

Podium (podium.com)

No price on its site · For: Local businesses: auto dealerships, home services, aesthetics and retail · 5 real buyers named it · Found for you from what buyers named.

What it leads with: Podium leads with a 24/7 AI Employee that handles leads from first inquiry to booking for local businesses. ("Turn more conversations into revenue with a 24/7 AI Employee that manages the full customer journey from first inquiry to booking and beyond.")

Its main claims, in its own words:

- Responds to every lead 24/7: "Your AI Employee responds like your best team member, 24/7, and never lets a hot lead go cold."
- Books on your calendar: "When the customer is ready, your AI Employee books directly on your calendar."
- Re-engages past customers: "Your AI Employee proactively re-engages past customers to keep your business top of mind and get them back on the schedule."
- Coached in plain language: "Give your AI Employee feedback in plain language the same way you'd coach a human team member."
- Every channel in one system: "One system, every channel"
- Widely used: "Over 60,000 businesses trust Podium"

Buyers like: Made a huge difference and reviews doubled.

Where you are ahead:

- Your site states the price outright, while Podium's pricing page offers only a custom quote.
- Your site answers the robot worry with ring-first rules, transfer on request and one-tap takeover, while Podium's pages rest on a customer saying the AI feels human.
- Your site covers emergencies reaching on-call people and spam never being billed, and Podium's pages are silent on both.

Where they are ahead:

- Podium shows named home service shops with numbers, such as Arctic Air's 30% year-over-year revenue increase, where your site has no named customer results.

What to say to a buyer weighing Podium: CallerWho lets you decide who gets a person: your phone can ring first, the AI transfers when the caller asks, and you can listen in and take over with one tap. The price is on the page at $49 a line plus $2 per new caller, with nothing charged until your first booked job plus seven days.

ServiceTitan (servicetitan.com)

No price on its site · For: Commercial and residential trade contractors, from four trucks to thousands · No real buyer named it · Found for you from what buyers named.

What it leads with: ServiceTitan leads with all-in-one business software for commercial and residential trade contractors, with AI add-ons. ("The #1 software for commercial and residential trades")

Its main claims, in its own words:

- Core platform for the whole shop: "Scheduling, dispatching, call booking, invoicing, pricebook, reporting, mobile estimates, configurable payroll, commission tracking, and customizable memberships."
- AI Virtual Agents book jobs: "Never miss a lead again with AI Virtual Agents that book jobs using your real-time capacity."
- Online booking that follows dispatch rules: "Let customers book jobs directly through your website with the only 24/7 online booking engine that aligns with your dispatch rules, availability, job types, and more"
- Smart dispatch: "Send the right tech to the right job every time."
- Pre-built integrations: "ServiceTitan has over 70+ pre-built integrations"
- Widely trusted: "Trusted by more than 100,000 service professionals"

Where you are ahead:

- Your site states the price and a trial with nothing charged until the first booked job, while ServiceTitan's pricing page gives no figure and asks buyers to request pricing.
- Your site answers the robot fear, wrong answers and getting a real person in plain words, and ServiceTitan's pages say nothing on any of them.
- Your site covers after-hours emergency alerts, ring-first and spam never billed, none of which appear on ServiceTitan's pages.

Where they are ahead:

- ServiceTitan's AI agents are native to the dispatch software many buyers already run, and your site does not list ServiceTitan among the tools it syncs with.
- ServiceTitan shows review scores and named contractors with results, where your site has no named customer results.
- ServiceTitan says its agents and online booking follow real-time capacity and dispatch rules, which speaks to the fear that an AI cannot schedule the way the shop does.

What to say to a buyer weighing ServiceTitan: CallerWho works without replacing your software: jobs sync to Google Calendar, Jobber, Housecall Pro, monday.com and QuickBooks, and setup takes a few minutes by talking. It is $49 a line plus $2 per new caller, and you can turn the AI off for a line in one switch.

Smith.ai (smith.ai)

Price on its site: Free for 25 calls a month; Pro from $150 a month for 75 calls at $2.00 a call · For: Law firms first, and small businesses generally · 3 real buyers named it · Found for you from what buyers named.

What it leads with: Smith.ai leads with AI receptionists backed by live human agents, and its homepage is aimed at law firm intake. ("Answer every call. Qualify every lead. Close better clients.")

Its main claims, in its own words:

- AI with live human backup: "AI handles the routine, live agents handle the complex."
- Billed per call, not per minute: "You pay per call, not per minute, so a long new-client call costs the same as a short one."
- Free starter plan: "25 calls / month, free forever"
- Spam blocked: "Our system automatically blocks over 20 million spam and robocalls from ever getting through."
- Books on the call: "Consults are booked live on the call."
- Many integrations: "Smith.ai integrates with 7,000+ systems to sync data and push call outcomes into the tools your firm already runs."

Buyers like: Recommended for answering calls.

Where you are ahead:

- Your site is written for HVAC, plumbing, electrical and roofing, while Smith.ai's homepage and examples are built around law firm intake.
- Your site books the job on each tech's calendar by skills and hours and alerts on-call people for emergencies, while Smith.ai's pages describe booking consultations and routing urgent matters.
- Your $2 charge applies only the first time a new caller reaches you and repeat callers are free, while Smith.ai bills every answered call against a monthly quota.

Where they are ahead:

- Smith.ai backs its AI with its own live human agents at any hour, while on your site a transfer goes to the number the owner lists during open hours.
- Smith.ai says its AI never claims to be human when a caller asks directly, while on calls your site leaves that to the owner's instructions.
- Smith.ai shows named customers, case studies and review scores, where your site has no named customer results.

What to say to a buyer weighing Smith.ai: CallerWho is built for trade shops: it books real jobs on your techs' calendars, sends emergencies to your on-call people, and shows who is calling before you pick up. You pay $49 a line plus $2 only the first time a new caller reaches you, so repeat callers and spam cost nothing.

Also named by buyers, considered and left out: Human answering service (This is a class of providers rather than one specific product); AI receptionist (unnamed tools and agencies) (This is a generic group of unnamed vendors and agencies, not one product); Missed-call text-back (This is a type of automation sold by many vendors, not one specific product); Remote or offshore call staff (This is a class of hired staff rather than a single product); IVR or phone tree (This is a generic phone technology, not one specific product); Google Voice (It is a general phone and voicemail service and its own site is not among the results); ZyraTalk (Its own website could not be found); Jobber AI Receptionist (Its website (getjobber.com) could not be read).

The competition

Every product, service and workaround named in what was read: 490 names from real buyers and 1,837 seller posts. The counts are of posts.

- Live answering service (generic) (Service). 64 real buyers named it in 73 posts (23 like it, 32 dislike it, 19 mixed). A human answering service or call center that picks up calls, takes messages and sometimes dispatches to the on call tech. Buyers like: A real person gathers the details and routes urgent calls to the on call tech within minutes. Buyers dislike: Many only take a name and number, cannot book or answer trade questions, cost a lot and annoy callers.
- AI receptionist (unnamed or generic) (Product). 26 real buyers named it (10 like it, 8 dislike it, 8 mixed). An AI voice agent that answers calls the contractor cannot take, qualifies the caller and books the job, sold by many unnamed builders and agencies. Buyers like: Answers and books calls that would have gone to voicemail, with lower overhead and few complaints once tuned. Buyers dislike: Callers hang up on it, it makes booking and address errors, and it did not fit commercial or after hours emergency calls.
- Avoca (Product, avoca.ai). 17 real buyers named it (6 like it, 3 dislike it, 8 mixed) · 22 seller posts promote it, from 18 accounts (7 vendors, 4 ads, 11 shills). An AI voice agent that answers, books and dispatches calls for home service companies and integrates with ServiceTitan. Buyers like: Works well for overflow and after hours once tuned, and customers like it. Buyers dislike: Takes time to learn and adjust, and some see it as the same as the others. Its sellers say: answers every call instantly, even after hours; higher booking rates without more staff; integrates with ServiceTitan.
- Offshore or virtual assistant (Service). 12 real buyers named it in 14 posts (7 like it, 2 dislike it, 5 mixed). A remote assistant or overseas call staff, often in the Philippines or Latin America, who answers and schedules calls. Buyers like: Cheap, sometimes bilingual and time zone aligned, and able to handle scheduling and intake. Buyers dislike: Hard to understand, takes time to train and does not grasp US operations or distances.
- Jobber AI Receptionist (Product, getjobber.com, $29 a month for 30 conversations, then $0.79 each). 11 real buyers named it (5 like it, 1 dislike it, 5 mixed) · 8 seller posts promote it, from 6 accounts (8 ads). An AI phone agent built into the Jobber field service software that answers calls and texts and books jobs. Buyers like: Better than expected and called a game changer by buyers who signed up. Buyers dislike: A never ending subscription with no exit. Its sellers say: answers calls and texts 24/7; books jobs on your calendar; filters spam and sales calls.
- Podium (Product). 5 real buyers named it (2 like it, 2 dislike it, 1 mixed) · 1 seller post promotes it, from 1 account (1 shill). A customer messaging platform with an AI answering service and missed call text back. Buyers like: Made a huge difference and reviews doubled. Its sellers say: has an AI answering service.

- Google Voice (Product). 5 real buyers named it (3 like it, 2 dislike it). A phone service buyers use for voicemail to text and email shared with the office. Buyers like: Voicemail to text lets them scan messages quickly for real emergencies. Buyers dislike: Customers hate automated responses.
- ZyraTalk (Product, zyratalk.com). 4 real buyers named it (2 like it, 1 dislike it, 1 mixed) · 6 seller posts promote it, from 6 accounts (5 vendors, 1 shill). An AI answering product for plumbing and HVAC that handles overflow and after hours calls and partners with ServiceTitan. Buyers like: Consistent and awesome for overflow and after hours. Buyers dislike: One buyer said it did not meet what they needed. Its sellers say: handles thousands of calls daily; official ServiceTitan partner; real call recordings on the website.
- Smith.ai (Service). 3 real buyers named it (1 like it, 2 mixed) · 4 seller posts promote it, from 4 accounts (4 ads). An answering service offering AI answering, live human receptionists or a hybrid of the two. Buyers like: Recommended for answering calls. Its sellers say: 24/7 call answering; AI plus live human escalation; lead qualification and scheduling.
- ServiceTitan voice AI (Product). 3 real buyers named it (1 like it, 2 dislike it). The AI voice agent and virtual CSR offered inside the ServiceTitan field service platform. Buyers like: Follows the script with no call outs or benefits. Buyers dislike: Too expensive per operative and integrates worse than Avoca.
- Rosie (Product, heyrosie.com, about $49 a month in one post, $149 a month in another). 2 real buyers named it (1 like it, 1 mixed) · 14 seller posts promote it, from 10 accounts (9 ads, 5 shills). An AI answering service that answers calls in natural language, books appointments and can transfer to a human. Buyers like: Good for new leads and can transfer callers to a human or text. Buyers dislike: Failed on after hours calls and with existing customers. Its sellers say: answers and books appointments; text summary after every call; easy setup, no coding.
- GoHighLevel (Product, gohighlevel.com, $297 a month). 2 real buyers named it (1 like it, 1 mixed) · 15 seller posts promote it, from 8 accounts (3 vendors, 12 ads). A CRM and automation platform that agencies resell to trades for missed call text back and AI voice receptionists. Buyers like: Many features in one place. Buyers dislike: Automates messages but not calls. Its sellers say: missed call text back; AI voice receptionist answers missed calls; no coding needed.
- NextPhone (Product, getnextphone.com, from $199 a month). 2 real buyers named it (2 mixed) · 4 seller posts promote it, from 3 accounts (1 ad, 3 shills). An AI receptionist for small businesses and contractors that handles overflow and after hours calls at a flat rate. Buyers like: Useful for missed and after hours calls once tuned. Buyers dislike: The first version made people hang up and the call flow needed cleanup. Its sellers say: flat rate with no per minute fees; handles overflow and after hours calls; unlimited calls 24/7.
- Broccoli (Product). 2 real buyers named it (2 mixed) · 3 seller posts promote it, from 3 accounts (1 ad, 2 shills). An AI front office that answers calls, follows up leads and books jobs for home service companies. Buyers dislike: Seems the same as the others to one buyer. Its sellers say: answers calls and books jobs; replaces costly answering services; called a game changer.

- RingCentral (Product, from $20 per user a month, AI Receptionist as an add on). 2 real buyers named it (2 mixed) · 2 seller posts promote it, from 2 accounts (2 ads). A business phone system with an AI Receptionist add on that answers calls 24/7. Its sellers say: AI Receptionist answers calls 24/7; agentic voice AI agents; unlimited domestic calling.
- Ruby (Service). 2 real buyers named it (1 like it, 1 mixed) · 2 seller posts promote it, from 2 accounts (2 ads). A human first virtual receptionist service that answers 24/7 in English and Spanish. Buyers like: Called the absolute best one buyer used, kept for a year. Its sellers say: answers 24/7/365; English and Spanish; premium human first answering.
- Quo (formerly OpenPhone) (Product, $49 a month for about 100 calls). 2 real buyers named it (1 like it, 1 dislike it) · 1 seller post promotes it, from 1 account (1 ad). A business phone system with after hours greetings, auto text and the Sona AI agent that answers calls. Buyers like: After hours greeting and auto text work. Buyers dislike: Sona works in testing but real callers hang up. Its sellers say: Sona AI answers 24/7; shared inbox for calls and texts; AI call summaries.
- Vendasta AI receptionist (Product, vendasta.com). 2 real buyers named it (1 like it, 1 mixed) · 1 seller post promotes it, from 1 account (1 vendor). An AI receptionist bundled in the Vendasta platform that answers calls, books against a real calendar and hands off to a human. Buyers like: Convincing case studies. Its sellers say: answers every call 24/7; books against a real calendar; seamless handoff to a human.
- Bland (Product). 2 real buyers named it (1 like it, 1 mixed). A general AI voice agent with scheduling integration. Buyers like: Good voice and scheduling integration. Buyers dislike: A general AI receptionist, not specific to roofers.
- Netic (Product). 2 real buyers named it (2 mixed). An AI answering vendor described as a larger company already used in the home service industry. Buyers dislike: Seems the same as the others to one buyer.
- Posh (Service). 2 real buyers named it (1 like it, 1 mixed). A US based answering service used for before and after hours calls. Buyers like: Worked well for before and after hours calls and is US based. Buyers dislike: Pricey.
- CloudTalk (Product, cloudtalk.io). 1 real buyer named it (1 dislike it) · 8 seller posts promote it, from 4 accounts (3 vendors, 4 ads, 1 shill). A VoIP call software platform with an AI receptionist and CRM integration. Buyers dislike: Integrated worse with scheduling. Its sellers say: 24/7 automated booking; deep CRM integration; no per call fees.
- Calloxy (Product). 1 real buyer named it (1 dislike it) · 4 seller posts promote it, from 3 accounts (4 shills). An AI call answering app promoted to plumbers for emergency call handling. Buyers dislike: Called a poor AI app plugged by spam accounts. Its sellers say: handles emergency calls with urgency; feels like a real conversation; setup in a couple of hours.
- Marblism (Product). 1 real buyer named it (1 like it) · 3 seller posts promote it, from 3 accounts (1 ad, 2 shills). A set of AI employees including a receptionist that answers missed calls, asks intake questions and books into Google Calendar. Buyers like: Sounds natural, books and does not hallucinate. Its sellers say: answers missed calls; books into Google Calendar; flat cost with no per seat fees.

- PlumbLine (Service). 1 real buyer named it (1 like it) · 3 seller posts promote it, from 3 accounts (1 ad, 2 shills). A plumbing answering service with trained live agents that books into scheduling software and charges per booked call. Buyers like: A current user keeps using it. Its sellers say: pay only per booked call; books into scheduling software; 24/7 trained live agents.
- Pink Callers (Service). 1 real buyer named it (1 like it) · 14 seller posts promote it, from 2 accounts (7 vendors, 7 ads). A nationwide hybrid AI plus human call answering service built for HVAC, plumbing, roofing and electrical contractors. Buyers like: A human answering service made for the trades. Its sellers say: hybrid AI plus human answering; after hours and overflow coverage; books jobs into your workflow.
- Dialpad (Product). 1 real buyer named it (1 mixed) · 2 seller posts promote it, from 1 account (2 vendors). A business phone platform with AI call answering that keeps context and escalates to a human. Its sellers say: 24/7 coverage; lead capture; escalates to a human with context.
- Sameday AI (Product). 1 real buyer named it (1 dislike it) · 2 seller posts promote it, from 1 account (2 shills). A home service focused AI answering tool with after hours booking and follow ups. Buyers dislike: So many problems that one buyer is considering dropping it. Its sellers say: home service focused; after hours booking; reminders and lead follow ups.
- Tradesly (Service, tradesly.ai). 1 real buyer named it in 2 posts (2 like it) · 2 seller posts promote it, from 1 account (2 shills). An answering product for the trades that combines AI voice with live agents trained on the company's procedures. Buyers like: Sounds human, switches to a live agent and has been a great add on. Its sellers say: AI voice plus live agents; agents trained on your SOPs; human handoff when the caller wants it.
- Dasha AI (Product). 1 real buyer named it (1 mixed) · 1 seller post promotes it, from 1 account (1 shill). A voice AI platform with SIP telephony that connects to external tools during a call. Buyers like: Easy SIP setup. Buyers dislike: Needs custom escalation work. Its sellers say: connects external tools mid call; free minutes to try.
- Hatch (Product). 1 real buyer named it (1 like it) · 1 seller post promotes it, from 1 account (1 ad). An AI answering service for home services that answers calls while the crew is on a job and books the next one. Buyers like: Works really well. Its sellers say: answers calls while you are on a job; books the next job.
- Lace (Product). 1 real buyer named it (1 mixed) · 1 seller post promotes it, from 1 account (1 shill). An AI call product described as a larger company already used in the home service industry. Its sellers say: preferred for size and features.
- Markate (Product). 1 real buyer named it (1 dislike it) · 1 seller post promotes it, from 1 account (1 vendor). A home service CRM with an AI receptionist called Kate that captures leads. Buyers dislike: Would not work with a Verizon line. Its sellers say: AI receptionist Kate captures leads; built for home service trades.
- ProBook (Product). 1 real buyer named it (1 mixed) · 1 seller post promotes it, from 1 account (1 shill). An AI platform for home services whose dispatching AI works with its other AI products and integrates with ServiceTitan. Buyers dislike: Seems the same as the others to one buyer. Its sellers say: dispatching AI talks with other AI products; integrates with ServiceTitan; all in one platform.

- Nextiva XBert (Product). 1 real buyer named it in 2 posts (2 mixed). The AI receptionist from business phone vendor Nextiva that captures job details, books and routes emergencies to a human. Buyers dislike: Seen as a general AI receptionist, not specific to roofers.
- QuoteIQ (Product, myquoteiq.com, AI answering from $29.99 a month). No real buyer named it · 13 seller posts promote it, from 8 accounts (1 vendor, 10 ads, 2 shills). A field service CRM for contractors with a built in AI Virtual Call Team that answers calls 24/7. Its sellers say: 24/7 AI call answering; all in one CRM, no bolt on fees; filters spam and qualifies leads.
- Upfirst (Product, upfirst.ai, $24.95 a month). No real buyer named it · 15 seller posts promote it, from 7 accounts (8 vendors, 4 ads, 3 shills). An AI answering service for small businesses with custom call handling rules, transfers and appointment scheduling. Its sellers say: most affordable option; easy to set up; custom call handling and transfer rules.
- AI Savvy (Service, theaisavvy.com). No real buyer named it · 5 seller posts promote it, from 5 accounts (5 ads). A done for you AI automation agency for home service businesses offering an AI voice agent and missed call text back. Its sellers say: answers every call, qualifies and books; instant missed call text back; live in 7 days.
- FieldCamp (Product). No real buyer named it · 7 seller posts promote it, from 4 accounts (2 vendors, 3 ads, 2 shills). Field service management software with an AI receptionist and dispatcher that books calls into a live dispatch board. Its sellers say: AI answers missed calls 24/7; books into the live dispatch board; assigns a named tech.
- LeadTruffle (Product). No real buyer named it · 5 seller posts promote it, from 3 accounts (3 vendors, 1 ad, 1 shill). A lead response tool that texts back leads in 30 seconds and uses voice AI for missed calls. Its sellers say: texts back leads in 30 seconds; qualifies address, timeline and budget; integrates with Yelp, Google Ads and LSA.
- AgentX (Service). No real buyer named it · 4 seller posts promote it, from 3 accounts (1 vendor, 2 ads, 1 shill). A done for you agency giving home service companies a team of AI agents including a receptionist that answers and books calls. Its sellers say: answers and books every call 24/7; live in 48 hours; done for you setup.
- Contractor In Charge (Service, contractorincharge.com). No real buyer named it · 3 seller posts promote it, from 3 accounts (2 vendors, 1 shill). A 24/7 live answering and booking service for contractors staffed by people trained for the trades. Its sellers say: real people trained for trades; answered within 30 seconds 24/7; emergencies flagged for same day response.
- CLARA (Product, yourclara.com, under $100 a month). No real buyer named it · 17 seller posts promote it, from 2 accounts (16 vendors, 1 ad). An AI voice agent for plumbers, electricians and other trades that qualifies callers and books on the calendar during the call. Its sellers say: books on Google Calendar during the call; industry specific qualifying questions; live demo calls you in 10 seconds.
- HelloSetter (Product, hellosetter.com). No real buyer named it · 6 seller posts promote it, from 2 accounts (6 vendors). A tool that answers inbound calls, calls new leads within 60 seconds and books the estimate visit. Its sellers say: calls new leads within 60 seconds; answers inbound callbacks; books estimate visits.

- yadalog (Product, yadalog.com). No real buyer named it · 6 seller posts promote it, from 2 accounts (6 vendors). An AI voice receptionist that answers 24/7 and books appointments into the calendar, set up by call forwarding. Its sellers say: free custom build in 48 hours; answers 24/7 naturally; books into your calendar.
- Swivl (Product, swivl.tech). No real buyer named it · 4 seller posts promote it, from 2 accounts (4 shills). Operations software for service businesses with an AI receptionist plus scheduling, dispatch and invoicing. Its sellers say: AI receptionist handles calls and bookings; calls, scheduling, dispatch and invoicing in one; SMS recovery.
- OnCallClerk (Product, oncallclerk.com, $29 a month). No real buyer named it · 3 seller posts promote it, from 2 accounts (3 shills). A self service AI receptionist with low latency and ready made integrations. Its sellers say: only $29 a month; self service setup; low latency.
- Retell AI (Product). No real buyer named it · 3 seller posts promote it, from 2 accounts (1 ad, 2 shills). A voice agent platform that builders use to create AI receptionists with low latency and pay as you go pricing. Its sellers say: about 600ms response latency; handles interruptions naturally; connects easily with GHL.
- AnswerConnect (Service, answerconnect.com). No real buyer named it · 19 seller posts promote it, from 1 account (19 vendors). A 24/7 live call answering service with human virtual receptionists that argues callers prefer people over AI. Its sellers say: real people answering 24/7; 85% prefer a real person; 1 in 3 would hang up on AI.
- RingWave (Service, getringwave.com, $1 per minute, from $49 a month). No real buyer named it · 10 seller posts promote it, from 1 account (10 vendors). A US based reception service offering human first phone answering backed by 24/7 AI voice agents. Its sellers say: human first answering backed by AI; affordable per minute pricing; appointment scheduling.
- InsertChat (Product, insertchat.com). No real buyer named it · 8 seller posts promote it, from 1 account (8 vendors). An AI chat and phone assistant that answers configured FAQs, does basic intake, books via Google Calendar and offers live transfer. Its sellers say: answers business FAQs and intake; live phone transfer; shared inbox assignment.
- Bellwicket (Product). No real buyer named it · 5 seller posts promote it, from 1 account (3 vendors, 2 ads). A managed AI receptionist for home service businesses that answers calls and texts, books jobs and tracks recovered revenue. Its sellers say: answers calls and texts back; books appointments; tracks recovered revenue.
- Getyn Phone (Product). No real buyer named it · 5 seller posts promote it, from 1 account (5 vendors). A phone platform with inbound and outbound AI voice agents, IVR, routing and warm transfer. Its sellers say: missed call recovery and after hours answering; warm transfer to the on call tech; free 2 week after hours trial.
- Zenplus (Product, $99 to $149 a month). No real buyer named it · 5 seller posts promote it, from 1 account (1 vendor, 4 shills). A configurable AI receptionist that captures inbound leads, answers FAQs and books appointments. Its sellers say: highly configurable; captures leads lost to voicemail; automates booking.

- KaiCalls (Product, kaicalls.com). No real buyer named it · 4 seller posts promote it, from 1 account (4 vendors). An AI receptionist and intake tool built on Vapi that resellers can sell under their own offer. Its sellers say: handles 80% of routine calls; captures after hours leads; easy to resell.
- BeepBack (Product). No real buyer named it · 3 seller posts promote it, from 1 account (3 vendors). A missed call text back tool that captures the caller's need, urgency and location and hands the owner a clean lead. Its sellers say: automatically texts back missed calls; captures job details and location; clear handoff to the owner.
- Catchwise (Product). No real buyer named it · 3 seller posts promote it, from 1 account (3 vendors). A missed call text assistant for tradespeople that answers questions by text and books the job into the calendar. Its sellers say: texts back within seconds; bookings land in your calendar; keep your number.
- Finish It Solutions (Service). No real buyer named it · 3 seller posts promote it, from 1 account (3 vendors). A remote dispatching and answering service where dispatchers work one on one with a trade company. Its sellers say: personalized one on one service; pricing built for the trades; 24/7 shifts available.
- PickRep (Product, $39, $79 or $149 a month flat). No real buyer named it · 3 seller posts promote it, from 1 account (3 vendors). An AI answering service for trade shops with flat capped pricing that emails call summaries and offers calendar slots. Its sellers say: flat monthly price with hard cap; $0 overage; English and Spanish on every plan.
- RingCatch (Product). No real buyer named it · 3 seller posts promote it, from 1 account (3 vendors). A missed call tool that texts the caller back, qualifies the lead and books, charging per qualified lead or booking. Its sellers say: instantly texts back missed callers; pay only per qualified lead or booking; custom rules per tradesperson.
- Workwife (Service, getworkwife.com). No real buyer named it · 2 seller posts promote it, from 1 account (2 vendors). A human virtual receptionist and live dispatch service with US based dispatchers working inside ServiceTitan. Its sellers say: US based live dispatchers; 24/7 coverage; works inside ServiceTitan.
- Sunshine Admin (Service, sunshineadmin.com). No real buyer named it · 1 seller post promotes it, from 1 account (1 vendor). An answering service that puts humans first with digital assistance. Its sellers say: human first, digital assist; AI only hurts customer experience.
- Hiring in-house office or phone staff (Another way). 76 real buyers named it in 85 posts (59 like it, 11 dislike it, 15 mixed). Employing a receptionist, secretary, office manager or CSR to answer the phone and schedule jobs. Buyers like: Customers reach a real person who can answer questions, schedule jobs and handle other office work. Buyers dislike: Too expensive for small shops to afford or justify, and staff still get stretched thin.
- Voicemail and calling back (Another way). 63 real buyers named it in 70 posts (46 like it, 15 dislike it, 9 mixed). Letting missed calls go to voicemail or an answering machine and returning them later. Buyers like: Simple, and serious callers or regulars leave a message that can be returned after the job. Buyers dislike: Almost nobody leaves a voicemail and callers have moved on before the callback.

- Calling back missed calls (Another way). 33 real buyers named it in 35 posts (28 like it, 3 dislike it, 4 mixed). Returning missed calls as soon as possible, between jobs or at set times. Buyers like: Simple and free, and many say customers understand and rarely go elsewhere before a prompt callback. Buyers dislike: Callers with emergencies have usually moved on, and calling back takes effort on a job site.
- Answering the phone yourself (Another way). 27 real buyers named it (19 like it, 2 dislike it, 6 mixed). The owner or tech picks up every call personally, even while on the job. Buyers like: Customers want to talk to the owner, and the first to respond wins the job. Buyers dislike: Extremely stressful with no break, and calls still get missed while in the field.
- Missed call text back (Another way). 24 real buyers named it in 27 posts (24 like it, 3 mixed) · 6 seller posts promote it, from 6 accounts (4 vendors, 2 ads). An automatic text sent to anyone whose call is missed, asking for details or offering a booking link. Buyers like: People answer texts more than voicemail, and it buys time and recovers a lot of lost jobs cheaply. Buyers dislike: One buyer said it helped only a little, and it may still count as a missed call. Its sellers say: texts missed callers within seconds; keeps the caller from ringing the next company; cheaper than an answering service.
- Hands-free headset or wearable (Do it yourself). 20 real buyers named it in 21 posts (21 like it, 1 mixed). Using a Bluetooth headset, earbuds, smart watch or glasses to answer calls while working. Buyers like: Lets them answer with one button and talk hands free while working. Buyers dislike: Not always possible to take a call on the job.
- Texting customers manually (Another way). 20 real buyers named it in 21 posts (20 like it, 1 mixed). Sending a quick personal text to missed callers between jobs and handling requests by text. Buyers like: Costs almost nothing, keeps the lead warm and most customers can wait once they know you are busy. Buyers dislike: Bad when people keep the text conversation going.
- Custom voicemail greeting (Another way). 18 real buyers named it (14 like it, 4 mixed). Recording a specific voicemail greeting that promises a callback time, gives another contact or refers callers elsewhere. Buyers like: Sets expectations and buys time so few callers hang up. Buyers dislike: Some calls are still missed and one regular customer hates it.
- Hiring a dispatcher (Another way). 15 real buyers named it in 16 posts (12 like it, 4 mixed). Employing an in-house or remote dispatcher or CSR to take calls and dispatch techs. Buyers like: Customers get a human, and one efficient dispatcher handles many techs. Buyers dislike: Costs around $50k to $58k a year and after hours coverage is hard to pay for.
- Call forwarding to a cell or on call person (Do it yourself). 14 real buyers named it in 15 posts (10 like it, 3 dislike it, 2 mixed). Forwarding the office or land line to the owner's cell, a second in command or the on call technician. Buyers like: Lets the owner talk to callers immediately while keeping the listed office number. Buyers dislike: Coverage is hit and miss, the caller may just get cell voicemail, and the owner is always on call.
- Voicemail asking callers to text (Another way). 14 real buyers named it (12 like it, 2 mixed). A voicemail greeting or business card that tells callers to text or email their details instead. Buyers like: Most callers text their details instead, which is faster and filters callers. Buyers dislike: The voicemail box can be full and it only gets contact info.

- Spouse, partner or family answering (Another way). 11 real buyers named it (8 like it, 2 dislike it, 1 mixed). Having a wife, partner, friend or family member answer the business phone. Buyers like: Someone always answers, books the job and tells callers he will call back. Buyers dislike: Cannot quote jobs, is rarely around, and it can strain the relationship.
- Building your own AI voice agent (Do it yourself). 10 real buyers named it (4 like it, 2 dislike it, 4 mixed). Assembling a custom AI receptionist from voice APIs such as Twilio and Vapi, or having a coder build one. Buyers like: Cheap or free, flexible and with no third party subscription. Buyers dislike: Callers hang up, and every outage and edge case becomes your problem to maintain.
- IVR or phone tree (Do it yourself). 10 real buyers named it (3 like it, 3 dislike it, 4 mixed). A phone menu or auto attendant that routes callers to employees, the on call tech or voicemail. Buyers like: Weeds out dumb questions and shows the call reason and lead source. Buyers dislike: Frustrating for customers, who hang up, and it may hurt conversions.
- Call screening and do not disturb (Do it yourself). 9 real buyers named it (9 like it). Using phone features or a person to screen unknown callers and only respond to convincing messages. Buyers like: Screens out spam and telemarketers and shows transcribed callers while working.
- Online self booking (Do it yourself). 5 real buyers named it (5 like it). A website with prices, an FAQ and online scheduling so customers book without calling. Buyers like: Customers book themselves, handling about 70% of bookings for one buyer.

Also named by real buyers: tradestash, Lex, Answerforce, Voice for Pest, Pest AI, Focus Virtual Assistants, Mitra, customers calling the desk, rotating tech phone shift, Map Communications, system to catch and qualify missed calls, Google Ads, leaving the phone in the truck, YouMail, simple in-house phone script, The Phone Coach training product, ChatGPT, high minimum charge ($300 first hour), minimum call-out / "jobs start from" price on Google profile, separate business cell with local number, cell phone as the business number, digital pager, then call back from cell, founder's own in-house software from 1996, live answering combined with after-hours automation, Grasshopper, Beside AI Receptionist (formerly M1), separate business line, dispatcher or answering service, TeleAssist, CallAssist, FieldEdge, writing down every lead with time and checking end of day, booking by phone call and manual route scheduling, customers book by phone call, Angi/Thumbtack/ProReferral screening, My Office Help, respond to voicemails / expand the team, AI chat, Free-2-Grow, sub the job out, Infernix, ServiceAnswer, Agent Zip, part-time commission sales guy answering calls, Jill's office, hired experienced tech and second truck, Ooma Office, going somewhere with no cell reception, on-call person answers first, then answering service, paid friends per job, customers call twice for emergencies, Your Phones Covered, hire workers and get off the tools, AI for post-call ticket and quote writing, rewriting internal processes, every sales floor phone rings, 365FrontDesk, Tresta, hired a party coordinator, CallHippo, AI website chatbot, AnswerFirst, WhatsApp/chat assistant, CRM programs with monthly fee, Teleleo, remote team across time zones.

What every seller says

Counted among the 1,766 seller posts compared (every seller post that makes a claim, of the 1,837 read).

- Books the job straight onto your calendar (589 seller posts; this site says it too). Buyers would rather hear: Buyers want to know it will not overbook them, will leave enough time for the job and the drive, and will not accept work they would turn down.
- Answers every call 24/7 (476 seller posts; this site says it too). Buyers would rather hear: Buyers want to hear that their own phone can still ring first and that the AI only covers what they cannot get to.
- Missed calls are costing you thousands (276 seller posts; this site says it too). Buyers would rather hear: Buyers say most of their missed calls were telemarketers and price shoppers, so tell them which missed calls were real jobs rather than quoting a scare number.
- Qualifies every lead (184 seller posts; this site says it too). Buyers would rather hear: Buyers doubt phone questions can spot a time-waster and want to keep the final say on which jobs they take.
- Instant missed-call text-back (173 seller posts; this site says it too). Buyers would rather hear: Buyers already know text-back; they want to hear the text thread ends in a booked job without a callback.
- Triages emergencies and routes them to the on-call tech (144 seller posts; this site says it too). Buyers would rather hear: Buyers want to decide what counts as worth waking up for, and to know it keeps trying until someone on call responds.
- Sounds like a real person (103 seller posts; this site says it too). Buyers would rather hear: Buyers say people can always tell, so they want honesty that it is an AI and an easy way to reach a person.
- A fraction of the cost of a receptionist (92 seller posts; this site says it too). Buyers would rather hear: Buyers want the actual monthly bill for a shop their size, and to know they will not pay for spam, long calls or overages.

Their words and the site's

Buyers say	The site says	Note
answering service / AI receptionist	AI voice agent	Use the buyers' terms; that is what they search and ask for.
a robot / talking to a machine	AI voice agent that actually sounds human	Name the fear in their word, then answer it.
who's calling and what it's about	caller intelligence / real-time caller enrichment / 150+ signals	Say 'who's calling'; drop 'enrichment'.

Buyers say	The site says	Note
the office lady / secretary / dispatcher	AI dispatcher	Buyers mean a person; say 'answers like your office would'.
CRM / dispatching software / ServiceTitan	the software you already use	Name the products; buyers ask by name.
per call / per minute / monthly fee	$2 per new caller	Explain 'new caller' against per-minute right away.
see who called and what they wanted	ring card	'Ring card' needs a plain explanation on first use.
puts them on the schedule	books a real work order	'On the schedule' is the buyers' phrase.
small local shop	category killers / enterprise-grade weapons	Buyers want to sound local, not big.
overflow and after hours	after-hours and overflow coverage	Same words; keep them prominent.

Questions the site does not answer

- How many callers hang up when the AI answers, and will I see who they were?
- Does it work with ServiceTitan or the dispatching software my shop already runs?
- How does it know how long a job will take and how far apart my jobs are before it offers a time?
- Where are my call recordings and customer details stored, and who can access them?
- Does Google count an AI-answered call as answered for my Local Services Ads responsiveness?
- What happens when a caller is angry, has a complaint or wants something off the script?
- What does the missed-call text do if the caller is on a landline?
- Which shops like mine are using it, and can I hear from them or read their reviews?

New copy

Draft copy, not approved for publication. It is written from what buyers said and what the site says, so have the business owner confirm every claim, price and promise before any of it goes live. Text in [square brackets] depends on an answer only they can give; 11 questions for them are listed under "Check first" in the fixes above and "Check with the owner first" below.

Top of the home page, option 1

See who's calling from under the sink. Then decide who answers.

While the phone rings, we show you the caller's name, home and property details from our proprietary property database, so you know which calls are worth putting your tools down for. Pick those up yourself. The AI puts the rest on the schedule, and a caller who asks for a person gets one.

Answers: Miss the call, they call the next guy; Callers hang up on a robot. Carries the edge: knowing the caller before hello.

Top of the home page, option 2

Worried callers hang up on a robot? Your phone rings first.

We know who is calling before the AI says hello, so your home-value and distance rules can ring a person first. Set your own phone to ring first and the AI only catches the calls you can't get to.

Answers: Callers hang up on a robot (the doubt the owner hears most), answered with the edge and ring-first.

Top of the home page, option 3

Busy enough? Pick your calls instead of answering all of them.

We show the caller's name, whether they own or rent, the home's estimated value and the drive from your shop while it rings, so you choose the jobs you want. Keep answering yourself with the AI switched off if you like.

Answers: Voicemail and a callback work fine; Spam, sales calls and price shoppers. Carries the edge: the ring card works with the AI off.

Page sections

You counted the missed calls. Which ones were real jobs?

You can't pick up from under a sink, in a panel or on a roof. Almost nobody leaves a voicemail anymore, so they hang up and call the next guy, and by the time you call back three hours later they've got someone else. Some of those calls were telemarketers and price shoppers. Some were the job you wanted, and until now you couldn't tell which.

Answers: Miss the call, they call the next guy; trigger: counting the missed calls and losing one big job to a missed call.

We know who's calling before anyone says hello

While the phone rings, a card on your phone shows the caller's name, address, whether they own or rent, the estimated home value, the year the house was built and the drive from your shop. It comes from our proprietary property database and is shown only to your business. A 1955 house likely has galvanized pipe, so the card tells your tech to bring the old-pipe fittings. Nobody has to quiz the customer about their pipes, and the details are never recited back to the caller.

Answers: onlyYou: knows the caller and the house before hello; Spam, sales calls and price shoppers; Whoever answers has to know the trade.

Some callers won't talk to a machine. So you choose who answers first.

Set a line to ring your phones first, with the AI picking up only after 1 to 10 rings. Home-value and distance rules can ring a person first. When a caller asks for a person, the AI transfers them to the number you list during your open hours. You can listen in on any AI call and take it over with one tap.

Answers: Callers hang up on a robot; wanted: my phone rings first, get a real person when the caller asks.

It puts them on the schedule. You keep the final say.

The AI asks what's wrong and where, then offers only times that fit your shop hours, each tech's hours and the jobs already booked. It picks the tech by skills, hours, open slot and workload, and promises an arrival window, two hours by default. A job outside your towns comes to you as a text: reply KEEP or DROP. Drag any job to another tech, or turn the AI off for a line in one switch.

Answers: Book the job, don't just take a message; It can't schedule like I do.

What it says, and what it won't

Asked a price, it looks in the price book you upload and quotes it the way you listed it. If your book doesn't cover it, it says it doesn't know. Every call is recorded, transcribed and summarized, with an email after each one, so you can check exactly what it said.

Answers: It will say something wrong.

$49 a line. $2 once per new caller. Never per minute, never for spam.

$49/mo per phone line, or $490/yr up front, plus $2 the first time a new caller reaches you. Twenty new callers in a month on one line is $49 + $40 = $89. Long calls, repeat callers, spam, robocalls, telemarketers, wrong numbers and hang-ups under 20 seconds are never charged. No setup fee, nothing charged until your first booked job plus seven days, and monthly has no contract.

Answers: What it costs, and what I get billed for; trigger: the answering service let them down with a bill for spam calls.

Doubts to answer

Callers hang up the moment they hear a robot.

Some callers want a real person, so you decide who gets one. Ring your own phones first and let the AI pick up only after 1 to 10 rings. Home-value and distance rules can ring a person first, and the AI transfers when the caller asks, during your open hours. Call the demo line for your trade and judge the voice yourself before your customers hear it.

Voicemail and a callback work fine. I'm not short of work.

Then don't change how you answer. Switch the AI off and your phone rings as normal, but the card still shows the caller's name, whether they own or rent, the home's estimated value and the drive from your shop. You pick the calls you want and let the rest go to voicemail like today.

It will tell my customers the wrong thing.

It quotes from the price book you upload, the way you listed it. If the answer isn't there, it says it doesn't have that detail rather than making one up. You set rules it must never break, in your own words, and every call has a recording, a transcript and a summary so you can check.

It can't schedule like I do, and it will take jobs I'd never take.

It offers only times that fit your shop hours, each tech's hours and the jobs already booked. A job outside your towns stays on the calendar and you get a text: reply KEEP or DROP. You can drag any job to another tech, set rules that ring a person first by distance, or turn the AI off for a line in one switch.

I have zero time to train it or babysit it.

It reads your website at sign-up, so it already knows your services, hours and towns. Setup takes a few minutes, all by talking. Anything that needs you, such as a missed call, a text, a promised call back or a job not billed yet, lands in one Needs Attention list.

Every vendor promises the same thing. Where's the proof?

Don't take our word for it. Call the demo line for your trade, free, no signup. Then run it on your own calls, alongside your current answering service if you have one. Nothing is charged until your first booked job plus seven days, and monthly has no contract.

Questions and answers

Can I answer my own phone first and have the AI catch the rest?

Yes. Set each line to Person, AI, Voicemail, or ring your phones first and then the AI after 1 to 10 rings. When you take the call yourself, the AI listens in the background, writes up the work order and texts your customer the confirmation.

Can a caller get to a real person?

Yes. The AI transfers when the caller asks, to the number you list, during your open hours. After hours it texts or emails your on-call people for emergencies or homes above a value you set.

Does it put them on the schedule or just take a message?

It books the job. It asks what's wrong and where, quotes your dispatch fee if you charge one, offers a time that fits your shop hours, your techs' hours and the jobs already booked, and puts it on your calendar. The customer gets a confirmation text.

How much is it, and am I billed for spam?

$49/mo per phone line, or $490/yr paid up front, plus $2 the first time a new caller reaches you on a call that connects for 20 seconds or more. Talk time is never billed by the minute. Spam, robocalls, telemarketers, wrong numbers, blocked numbers, repeat callers and hang-ups under 20 seconds are never charged. No setup fee.

What happens with an emergency at 2 AM?

The AI answers and checks the call against your rule. For emergencies like flooding, gas or no heat, or for homes above a value you set, it texts or emails your on-call people while the caller is still on the line. A dripping faucet gets booked for the morning.

Can I use just the caller details, without the AI answering?

Yes. Flip one switch and the AI goes off. Your phone rings as normal and your team answers, with the caller's name, owner or renter, home value and drive time still on screen as it rings.

Does it work with the software I already use?

Booked jobs sync to Google Calendar, Jobber, Housecall Pro and monday.com, and priced jobs become QuickBooks Online invoices. There is also a calendar link any calendar app can subscribe to.

Can I check what the AI told my customer?

Yes. Every call is recorded, transcribed and summarized, and you get an email after each one. You can also listen in on a live call and take it over.

Lines to replace

- Now: "Answers 24/7, books on the spot, and turns after-hours ringing into revenue while you sleep."
  - Better: "Your phone still rings first if you want it to. After hours, the AI books the routine job for the morning and alerts your on-call people only for emergencies or homes above a value you set." (Every seller says 24/7; buyers want their own phone first.)
- Now: "$4,800+/mo lost"
  - Better: "Which of your missed calls were real jobs?" (Scare number; buyers say many misses were spam.)
- Now: "Handles FAQs, qualifies callers, and routes only real jobs to your team so techs stay billable."
  - Better: "Before hello, the card shows who's calling: owner or renter, home value and distance. You keep the say on which jobs you take." (Buyers doubt phone questions; lead with the card.)
- Now: "A fraction of the cost of a full-time receptionist"
  - Better: "One line with 20 new callers in a month is $89, with no per-minute charges and no bill for spam" (Buyers want the actual bill, not a comparison.)
- Now: "Everything contractors need to capture more calls — and book more jobs."
  - Better: "Your phone rings first. You see who's calling. The AI catches the calls you can't get to." (Generic heading; says nothing only you can say.)

- Now: "Real-time caller enrichment — before hello."
  - Better: "See who's calling while it rings: name, owner or renter, home value and the drive from your shop." (Buyers say 'who's calling', not 'enrichment'.)
- Now: "AI voice agents that actually sound human."
  - Better: "An AI receptionist your callers can get past. Some people won't talk to a machine, so you choose who answers first, and a caller who asks for a person gets one." (Buyers say people can always tell.)
- Now: "The small contractor deserves enterprise-grade weapons."
  - Better: "A one-truck shop should know who's calling too." (Buyers want to sound local, not big.)

Emails

1. First email: the missed-call moment

Subject: The call you couldn't pick up

Hi [First name],

You're under a sink or up on a roof and the phone rings. Nobody leaves a voicemail anymore, so by the time you call back they've gone with the next guy on the list.

CallerWho shows you who's calling while the phone is still ringing: the caller's name, whether they own or rent, the estimated home value and the drive time from your shop. You know which calls are worth putting your tools down for. The ones you can't get to, the AI answers in your shop's name and puts on the schedule.

Hear it yourself: call the free demo line for your trade, no signup. The numbers are on the site.

callerwho.com

2. Answers the robot worry

Subject: Will callers hang up on a robot?

Hi [First name],

Maybe you've heard it from another shop: customers realize about 30 seconds in that it isn't a real person, hang up and call someone else. It's a fair worry, especially with older homeowners.

With CallerWho you choose who answers first. Set your line to ring your phone first, and the AI picks up only after 1 to 10 rings. If a caller asks for a person, it transfers them to the number you list during your open hours. You can also listen in on any AI call and take over with one tap.

Don't take our word for the voice. Call the demo line for your trade and judge it yourself.

callerwho.com

3. Price: what it costs and what you get billed for

Subject: $49 a line, never per minute

Hi [First name],

If you've paid an answering service by the minute, you know the bill: long calls cost more, and the spam calls get billed too. Then all you get is a name and a number to chase that night.

CallerWho is $49 a month per phone line, or $490 a year paid up front, plus $2 the first time a new caller reaches you. Talk time is never metered. Repeat callers, spam, robocalls and wrong numbers are never charged. Twenty new callers in a month on one line comes to $89. No setup fee, and monthly has no contract.

See the full pricing on the site.

callerwho.com

4. Last email: keep answering your own phone

Subject: Keep answering your own phone

Hi [First name],

Last note from me. Maybe voicemail and a callback at the end of the day works for you, and you'd rather keep answering your own phone. You can.

Set your line to ring you first. CallerWho shows who's calling as it rings, and when you take the call yourself, it writes up the work order and texts the customer the confirmation after you hang up, so you write nothing down.

Try it on your own calls: a card is saved at sign-up, and nothing is charged until your first booked job plus seven days.

Start the free trial at callerwho.com

Text messages

Send these only to people who agreed to get texts from the business.

- Under a sink when the phone rings? CallerWho shows who's calling and if they own the home before you pick up. Hear it: callerwho.com Reply STOP to opt out (The missed-call moment)
- Worried callers hang up on a robot? Ring your phone first; the AI only picks up after 1 to 10 rings. callerwho.com Reply STOP to opt out (Answers the robot worry)
- Tired of per-minute answering bills? CallerWho is $49/mo per line plus $2 once per new caller. Spam is never billed. callerwho.com Reply STOP to opt out (Price and spam billing)
- Keep answering your own phone. CallerWho writes up the work order and texts the customer after you hang up. callerwho.com Reply STOP to opt out (For owners who answer their own phone)

Press release

Fill in the blanks in square brackets before it goes out. The quote is a suggestion: put a name on it only if that person would say it.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CallerWho shows trade contractors who is calling, and the house, before they answer

The phone system answers contractors who miss calls on the job but fear their customers will hang up the moment a robot picks up.

[CITY, STATE], [DATE]: CallerWho offers a phone system for plumbers, HVAC technicians, electricians and roofers who run one to five trucks and answer their own phone on the job. While the phone rings, it shows the caller's name, whether they own or rent the home, its estimated value, the year it was built and the drive time, so the owner can decide whether to pick up. An AI answers the calls the owner cannot get to and puts the job on the schedule.

Contractors say they cannot answer from under a sink or on a roof, and that callers no longer leave voicemail; they hang up and call the next contractor. Many also distrust AI answering, saying their customers hang up as soon as they realise they are talking to a robot. CallerWho lets the shop choose who answers first. A line can ring the owner's phone first, with the AI picking up only after 1 to 10 rings. Rules based on the caller's home value or distance can ring a person first, and the AI transfers a caller who asks for a person during the shop's open hours.

"Some callers do not want to talk to a machine, so the contractor decides who gets a person. You can keep answering your own phone, see who is calling before you pick up, and let the AI write up the job after you hang up," said [Name], [Title] of CallerWho.

The service costs $49 a month per phone line, or $490 a year, plus $2 the first time a new caller reaches the shop. Talk time is not billed by the minute, and repeat callers, spam and robocalls are not charged. Nothing is charged until seven days after the first booked job.

Contractors can call a free demo line for their trade, with no signup, to hear the AI answer. More information is at callerwho.com.

About CallerWho

CallerWho is an AI phone system for HVAC, plumbing, electrical and roofing contractors that answers calls and texts around the clock, shows property details about the caller while the phone rings, books jobs on technicians' calendars and sends pay links. The company is based in the Santa Monica area of California and has operated since 2016.

Media contact: [Name], [Email], [Phone]

###

Replies to post in the threads

Each one says it comes from the business. Check a forum's rules on replies from businesses before posting.

ContractorTalk: What are you running for quote follow-ups and missed calls?

Thread: www.contractortalk.com/threads/what-are-you-running-for-quote-follow-u... · Sign in or join: www.contractortalk.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, an AI phone system for the trades, so take this as a vendor's answer to what to run for missed calls. Your phone can ring first and the AI picks up after 1 to 10 rings, in your shop's name, and puts the caller on the schedule instead of taking a message. There's also missed-call text-back if you'd rather start smaller. Honest gap: we have no direct connection to tradestash. Jobs sync to Google Calendar, Jobber, Housecall Pro, monday.com and QuickBooks, plus a calendar feed and webhooks. For follow-ups, missed calls, promised call backs and unanswered texts land in one Needs Attention list; it isn't an automated quote chaser. It's $49/mo a line plus $2 per new caller. More at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Which answering service is actually worth paying for?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/AIAssisted/comments/1xslb87/which_answering_service_i... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, so this is a vendor answering your questions, not a customer. Price: $49/mo per phone line plus $2 the first time a new caller reaches you, so 20 new callers is $89. Talk time isn't metered, so there are no overage charges, and spam and repeat callers aren't billed. Monthly has no contract; the $490/yr plan isn't refunded. It books appointments on your calendar rather than only taking a message, and follows rules you set in your own words. Urgent after-hours calls get texted or emailed to your on-call people, and a caller who asks for a person is transferred during open hours. Not a fit outside home-service trades like plumbing, HVAC, electrical and roofing. If you're comparing AI answering service options in those trades, details are at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Which ai receptionist approach actually scales for high volume?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/aiagents/comments/1xrvp6r/which_ai_receptionist_appro... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, which makes a dedicated AI receptionist for home-service contractors, so I'm biased toward that side. On spikes: ours answers many calls on a line at once, and talk time isn't billed by the minute, so a storm or heat-wave day doesn't mean busy signals or a bigger per-minute bill. The cost that grows is $2 the first time a new caller reaches you, on top of $49/mo per line. Where custom wins: if you need call flows or integrations nobody sells, or you're outside the trades. We're built for shops up to about 15 technicians and sync to Jobber, Housecall Pro, Google Calendar, monday.com and QuickBooks; past that, building on a voice API may be worth the upkeep. Details at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Has anyone used an AI receptionist for a small business?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/Entrepreneur/comments/1wcfp2e/has_anyone_used_an_ai_r... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, an AI receptionist for home-service contractors, so weigh this as a vendor's view. Some callers do hang up when they realise it's a machine, and I don't have a hang-up number to give you. What helps is not making the AI the first voice: set the line to ring your front desk first and have the AI pick up only after 1 to 10 rings, so it only catches the calls they can't get to. If a caller asks for a person, it transfers during your open hours. When it doesn't know an answer it says so and takes the details. We're built for trades like plumbing and HVAC, so if that's not you, look elsewhere. You can hear the voice on a demo line at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Need help with inbound calls - AI receptionist?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/RoofingSales/comments/1vtogio/need_help_with_inbound_... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, an AI receptionist for the trades, so take this as a vendor answering, not a customer. On zero time to oversee it: setup is a spoken call of a few minutes after it reads your website, and anything that needs a person lands in one Needs Attention list instead of you checking call records. It answers after hours, books on each person's calendar, texts pay links, and syncs jobs to Jobber, Housecall Pro, monday.com, Google Calendar and QuickBooks. If your CRM is something else, check that first, because beyond those there are only webhooks. The roofer-specific part: before you pick up, it shows whether the caller owns or rents, so nobody drives out to quote someone who can't approve a roof. More at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Human receptionist or AI receptionist?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/workforcemanagement/comments/1vq0ycr/human_receptioni... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I work at CallerWho, an AI receptionist for home-service contractors, so weigh this as a vendor's view. If you're not a plumbing, HVAC, electrical, roofing or similar trade shop, we're the wrong fit and one of the general tools you listed makes more sense. On setup hassle, ask each vendor how long before it takes a live call. Ours is a spoken setup call of a few minutes after it reads your website. On AI versus overseas staff, the honest test is your own callers. Run it only on the 5pm-9pm and 6am-8am windows, read the transcripts for a week, and see how many book and how many hang up. Details at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Has anyone used an AI Answering Service?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/RoofingSales/comments/1vnxkqy/has_anyone_used_an_ai_a... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, which sells an AI answering service for roofers, so I'm not the real roofing company you asked to hear from and I won't pretend to be. What I can offer is a way to judge it without trusting anyone. We have a free roofing demo line you can call with no signup. You can also set your receptionist's phone to ring first, so the AI only picks up after 1 to 10 rings or on weekends. Compared with voicemail, the difference is that it books the inspection while the caller is still on the line, and every call is recorded so you can check what was said. If your callers mostly leave messages now, voicemail may be enough. The demo number is on callerwho.com.

Reddit: Missing calls due to cell service. Any recommendations?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/smallbusiness/comments/1vkirw8/missing_calls_due_to_c... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, a phone system for contractors, so this is a vendor answering. First the free fix for missing calls with no cell service: ask your carrier about conditional call forwarding for when your phone is unreachable, so those calls go somewhere instead of failing. Where we fit: your business number lives with us rather than on the handset. With no signal, the call still gets answered by the AI or goes to voicemail that's written out, and the caller can get a text back. Once you're back in service, every missed call is in one list with Call and Text buttons. It won't fix dead zones, and our app needs signal or wifi to ring you live. It's $49 a month per line plus $2 per new caller. More at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Anyone here pay for an answering service? Was it worth it?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/VoiceAutomationAI/comments/1uznj40/anyone_here_pay_fo... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, which competes with answering services, so factor that in. Both things you heard are true. Message-only services do annoy callers, because the person wanted a time on the schedule, not a callback. And voicemail works fine for established shops that are as busy as they want to be. If that's you, don't pay for anything. If you are losing jobs to missed calls, check two things on any answering service: whether it books the job on your real calendar while the caller is on the line, and what you get billed for. Ours is $49 a month per line plus $2 the first time a new caller reaches you, never per minute and never for spam. There's more at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Did a quick "missed call audit" on our inbound leads this month, and the math is sickening. How are you guys handling this?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/smallbusiness/comments/1uyxrhn/did_a_quick_missed_cal... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, so this is a vendor's answer. You already have the call log. What it can't tell you is which of those calls were worth catching. Instead of an answering service, we show you who's calling while it rings: the name, whether they own or rent, the home value and the drive time. You pick up the ones worth putting your tools down for. The AI answers the rest after however many rings you set, including after 5:30, and books them on your techs' calendars. It's $49 a month per line plus $2 per new caller, with no setup fee. Honest caveat: some callers dislike talking to a machine, so it transfers to a person on request during your open hours. The demo lines are at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Has anyone here switched to an AI receptionist for handling missed calls?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/AIReceptionists/comments/1ucpd2s/has_anyone_here_swit... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, an AI receptionist built for home-service trades, so read this as a vendor's take. Your concern is fair: some callers do hang up when they realise it isn't a person. The setups that work don't force everyone through the AI. With ours, your own phone can ring first and the AI picks up only after 1 to 10 rings. It transfers when a caller asks for a person during your open hours, and you can listen in and take over a live call. Every call is recorded with a transcript, so you see for yourself how customers react. If you're not a trade like plumbing, HVAC, electrical or roofing, we're probably not the right fit. Free demo lines are at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Has anyone here switched to an AI receptionist for handling missed calls?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/AIToolsAndTips/comments/1uaj43m/has_anyone_here_switc... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I work for CallerWho, so this isn't a customer review. On impersonal: what keeps it personal is mostly you still answering when you can. With ours, when you pick up yourself, the AI listens in the background, writes up the work order and texts the customer the confirmation, so you keep the personal call without writing anything down. The AI receptionist only takes the calls you can't get to, and returning customers are recognised by name and address instead of being treated like strangers. It's built for home-service contractors, and for other kinds of service business it's not the right tool. Before deciding, call a demo line and judge the voice yourself. They're at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Reply in: Running a 12-person HVAC company and drowning in follow-up calls. Anyone used AI to automate scheduling?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/AIForBusinessOwner/comments/1tcn7zv/comment/omm169h/ · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, which sells AI call answering to HVAC and other trades, and I agree with you. A real person first is the right default. Ours can be set so the office phones ring first and the AI only picks up after 1 to 10 rings, or only after hours. For a 12-person shop with a dispatcher, the other useful piece is after-hours emergency calls. The AI texts or emails the on-call tech only for emergencies like no heat or gas, or for homes above a value you set, and books the rest for the morning. It won't replace a good dispatcher, and it isn't meant to. How the after-hours rules work is on callerwho.com.

PlumbingZone: Anyone else losing jobs to missed calls?

Thread: www.plumbingzone.com/threads/anyone-else-losing-jobs-to-missed-calls.9... · Sign in or join: www.plumbingzone.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, so this is a vendor talking, not another plumber. Your buddy's text-back is a decent cheap first step. It buys time, but you still have to call back, and it does nothing for the midnight emergency. On your wife not being able to quote: ours quotes from the price book you upload, and says it doesn't know if the book doesn't cover it. On customers hating automated responses: you can set your phone to ring first and the AI to pick up after 1 to 10 rings. While it rings you see whether the caller owns or rents and how far away they are, so you know which ones to stop for. It's $49 a month per line plus $2 per new caller, against that $1,500. The plumbing demo line is at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Anyone had success with AI Receptionist?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/WindowCleaning/comments/1sguom7/anyone_had_success_wi... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, so take this as a vendor's view, not a customer's. Your worry is fair: some people do hang up when they realise it's an AI receptionist, and I don't have a hang-up rate to quote you. What we do about it is ring your phone first and have the AI pick up only after 1 to 10 rings, and it transfers to you when a caller asks for a person, during your open hours. On spam, a press-7 filter stops most robocalls from ringing you, and spam is never billed. While it rings you also see who's calling and whether they've called before. One caveat: it's built for home service trades like plumbing and HVAC, so it may not fit other businesses. Details at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Reply in: Built an AI that handles missed calls via text — would you actually use this?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/SaaS/comments/1sfheyu/comment/oexrwun/ · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, which makes an AI that answers calls and texts for home service contractors. Angry or confused callers are the right thing to worry about. Ours doesn't try to win those. On text, when it needs a person it flags the thread as paused, and anything you type goes out in place of the AI's next reply. If it doesn't have an answer, it says so rather than making one up, and takes their details. On calls it transfers when someone asks for a person, during your open hours. It won't calm every upset customer, so you'll still handle those yourself. On business type, it's built for trades like plumbing, HVAC, electrical and roofing, not everything. More at callerwho.com.

r/Plumbing: Losing jobs you don't even know you lost

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/Plumbing/comments/1saya59/losing_jobs_you_dont_even_k...

I'm with CallerWho, which makes a phone system for plumbers and other trades, so this is a vendor answer. Your 30-minute finding matches what owners tell us: nobody leaves a voicemail, they just call the next guy. The cheapest fix is a missed-call text-back, which gets a reply out right away, though you still have to follow up. What we add is that your phone shows who's calling while it rings: name, owner or renter, year the house was built, drive time. That tells you which calls are worth putting your tools down for. The ones you can't get to, an AI answers and puts on the schedule. If you're already as busy as you want to be, voicemail may be fine. More at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Do small businesses really need an AI receptionist?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/AIReceptionists/comments/1ry8vqz/do_small_businesses_... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, so I sell one of these; weigh this accordingly. Honest answer: early on it's often unnecessary. If you miss a couple of calls a week, a missed-call text-back or a quick callback may cover it. An AI receptionist starts to matter when you count the missed calls and find people aren't leaving voicemail. On lead quality, phone questions don't tell you much. What we do instead is show who's calling while it rings (owner or renter, home value, distance), so you decide which calls to pick up. That only makes sense for home service trades; we're not built for other businesses. It's $49/mo per line plus $2 per new caller. More at callerwho.com.

r/Plumbing: Reply in: Plumbers—what app/software do you use to handle scheduling, dispatching, invoicing, and job tracking?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/Plumbing/comments/1rqe4dh/comment/oay9dbo/

I'm with CallerWho, so this is the vendor side, not a user's. On intake, what we hear from plumbers is that message-taking doesn't fix it, because they still do the callbacks at night. We built two things for that gap. If you'd rather keep answering yourself, you take the call and the AI writes the work order and texts the customer the confirmation, so nothing gets written down under a sink. If you can't pick up, your phone rings first, then the AI answers after the number of rings you set and puts the caller on the schedule. Jobs sync to Jobber and Housecall Pro. We don't list a ServiceTitan sync, so it's not the fit there. More at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Anyone successfully using AI to answer calls after hours? Looking for real experiences

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/hvacpeople/comments/1ra19a9/anyone_successfully_using... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, an AI answering service for HVAC and other trades, so this is a vendor's answer. Do customers hang up? Some will, and I don't have a hang-up number to give you. The fair test is to call a demo line and judge the voice yourself. On scheduling, it only offers times that fit your shop hours, each tech's hours and the jobs already booked, and after hours it offers your next opening. For emergencies like no heat or a gas smell, it texts or emails your on-call person while the caller is still on the line. You can also set a home value above which you get alerted, so nobody is woken for a thermostat question. It's $49/mo per line plus $2 per new caller. Demo lines are at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Anyone Using an AI Receptionist for Their Business?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/AIReceptionists/comments/1r5d765/anyone_using_an_ai_r... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, so this comes from a vendor. On sounding natural, don't trust anyone's claim, ours included; call a demo line and listen. Complex questions are where an AI receptionist usually goes wrong. Ours quotes prices only from the price book you upload, and if the answer isn't there it says it doesn't know and takes the caller's details, or transfers if they ask for a person. Every call is recorded and transcribed so you can check. For setup, it reads your website and the rest is a few minutes of talking, though I'd still review the first calls. On bookings, I have no independent numbers to show you, so run it on your own calls first. It's built for home service contractors only. More at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Who has actually replaced front-desk tasks with an AI receptionist?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/smallbusiness/comments/1pqlni4/who_has_actually_repla... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, an AI receptionist for home service trades, so weigh this as a vendor's answer. Did customers hate it: some callers do hang up on a robot, and anyone who says otherwise is selling. What works is not making the AI the first voice for everyone. You can have your own phone ring first and the AI pick up only after 1 to 10 rings, and it transfers when a caller asks for a person during your open hours. On booking, it only offers times that fit your hours and the jobs already on the calendar, and every call is recorded so you can check it. If you already catch most calls, you may not need it. There's a no-signup demo line at callerwho.com.

r/Plumbing: How do you guys handle missed calls when you're under a sink/in an attic?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/Plumbing/comments/1p1ochh/how_do_you_guys_handle_miss...

I'm with CallerWho, which makes a phone system for trades, so take this as a vendor talking. Straight up: our numbers are U.S. local numbers, so if your brother is in the UK, check with us before assuming it fits. The general answer holds anywhere though. A plain missed-call auto-text is the cheap first step and recovers a fair share of callers, but he still has to call back, and it does nothing for the emergency caller who wants someone now. What closes the gap is something that puts them on the schedule while he's still under the sink. Ours is $49 a month per line plus $2 the first time a new caller reaches you, never per minute. Details at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Reply in: Researching the impact of missed calls for self-employed tradespeople

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/ukplumbing/comments/1o5i6pc/comment/njb895r/ · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, an AI phone system for trades, so this is a vendor's view. Both things you describe are doable. On pricing: you upload your price book and it quotes your visit fee or job ranges the way you listed them, said and agreed before anything is booked, and it can text a pay link for the fee during the call. On filtering: before you pick up, your phone shows whether the caller owns or rents, the home's estimated value and how far away they are, and jobs outside your towns come to you as a KEEP or DROP text. What it won't do is judge a caller's patience for you. You keep the say on which jobs you take. More at callerwho.com.

Facebook groups: Reply in: What are your thoughts on Ai CSRs as the first line of answering a phone call? Is Ai there yet? How are some of these smaller companies using this as their only

Thread: www.facebook.com/groups/hvacbusinessownerscontractors/posts/1549700169... · Sign in or join: www.facebook.com/groups/hvacbusinessownerscontractors/

I'm with CallerWho, one of the AI answering companies for the trades, so not a neutral voice. Mixed feelings are reasonable. A few things worth asking whoever you're handing the line to: are you billed for spam and robocalls, can your own phone ring first with the AI only catching what you can't get to, and can you hear every call afterwards. For what it's worth, ours charges $2 only the first time a new caller reaches you, so spam, robocalls and wrong numbers are never billed, and every call is recorded with a transcript. I'd also run any AI alongside your old service for a week or two before cutting over. More at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Ai receptionist

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/automation/comments/1nowdoj/ai_receptionist/ · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, so this is a vendor answering. Honest fit check first: we don't plug into RingCentral. We're our own phone system, so you'd forward your existing line to us or port the number, and we're built for home service contractors, not general offices. On the part you care about: when a caller asks for a person, the AI transfers them to the number you list during your open hours, and in the app or web phone you can see every call the AI is on, listen in and take over with one tap. Calls are answered 24/7 with recordings and summaries. Voice is English and Spanish only; texts cover most languages. If RingCentral has to stay as is, we're probably not it. More at callerwho.com.

r/electricians: Reply in: what’s your system for calls when you’re tied up?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/electricians/comments/1nlb9ob/comment/nf4bfev/

I'm with CallerWho, an AI answering service for electricians and other trades, so I'm biased. A realistic voice matters less than you'd think. Some callers still hang up once they realise it's a machine, so the question to ask any vendor is what happens then. With ours you can ring your own phone first and let the AI pick up after 1 to 10 rings, and it transfers when someone asks for a person during your open hours. While it rings you also see whether the caller owns the home and how far away they are, so you know if it's worth climbing down the ladder. $49 a month per line plus $2 per new caller. Demo line and details at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Reply in: Tried using an AI receptionist

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/automation/comments/1mzrbzc/comment/nef3ltx/ · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, since you asked what company; we make an AI receptionist for home service contractors only. On "I didn't quite catch that": ours asks when a word doesn't make sense and reads the address and callback number back before booking, so you'll still hear some of it. I'd rather it check than guess. On buying a whole platform: ours is one plan, $49 a month per phone line plus $2 the first time a new caller reaches you, no setup fee, monthly with no contract. If you're not in the trades it's the wrong tool. Whatever you pick, call its demo line a few times on a bad connection first. Ours is at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Reply in: AI Answering Service - is it worth it?

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/smallbusiness/comments/1lvmec8/comment/n28dgv7/ · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, so vendor here. You've got the point right: the caller who gets voicemail calls the next guy. Where I'd add something is that being answered isn't enough if all they get is a message taken. They stay on the line when they're put on the schedule. And you don't need $1k a month to do it. Ours is $49 a month per line plus $2 the first time a new caller reaches you, with no per-minute charge and nothing billed for spam. It's built for home service trades, so outside those it's not a fit. Pricing is laid out at callerwho.com.

Reddit: Looking for An Ai Answering service that gathers name address # and information regarding plumbing issue for a plumbing business. We dont want the service to schedule

Thread: www.reddit.com/r/Entrepreneurs/comments/1pwcr0e/looking_for_an_ai_answ... · Sign in or join: www.reddit.com/register/

I'm with CallerWho, an AI answering service for plumbers, so this is a vendor's answer. Honestly, ours is built to book the job, so check before assuming it suits you. What it does do for intake: asks what's wrong and where, takes the name, address and number, reads the address and callback number back to confirm, and emails you a summary after every call with the recording and transcript. You set rules per line in your own words for what it must never do. Whether booking can be switched off completely is something to ask us before you move a line. If it can't, a message-only service is the better fit. Contact details are at callerwho.com.

Check with the owner first

- Do you sync with ServiceTitan, or with any dispatching software beyond Jobber, Housecall Pro, Google Calendar, monday.com and QuickBooks? (Buyers ask about the software they already run by name, ServiceTitan most of all. The site lists five products and does not mention it.) If yes, say: "Booked jobs land in ServiceTitan, Jobber, Housecall Pro, Google Calendar, monday.com and QuickBooks."
- When an after-hours emergency alert goes out and nobody on call responds, does it keep trying, for example the next person on call, a repeat text or a phone call? (Buyers want emergencies to reach whoever is on call and to know it keeps trying. The site only says it texts or emails your on-call people.) If yes, say: "An emergency alert keeps going until someone on call responds."
- Can an owner set the AI to say at the start of every call that it is an AI assistant? (Buyers say callers can always tell and want honesty upfront. The site says the AI says so by text if asked, and on calls only if the owner adds it to the line's instructions.) If yes, say: "Set it to say it's your shop's AI assistant at the start of every call. No pretending."
- Can an owner set a typical length for each job type and a travel buffer between jobs, and does the AI offer only times that fit both? (Plumbers and HVAC techs say back-to-back slots make them late all day. The site covers shop hours, tech hours and jobs already booked, but not job length or drive time between jobs.) If yes, say: "You set how long each kind of job takes and how much drive time to leave between jobs. The AI offers only times that fit both."
- Does the call log or Needs Attention list show every caller who hung up after the AI answered, including hang-ups under 20 seconds, so the owner can call them back? (The buyers' loudest worry is that callers hang up on the AI and the owner never finds out.) If yes, say: "If a caller hangs up on the AI, you see who it was in Needs Attention, with Call and Text buttons."
- Do you have real customers, by name and trade, who have agreed to be quoted or to have a recorded call published? (Buyers say every vendor promises the same and ask for real users in their trade. The site has a composite case study and no named shops.) If yes, say: "[Name], [trade], [town]: "[their words]". Listen to one of their real calls."
- Do you have a measured share of callers who stay on the line after the AI answers, across real customer calls? (Buyers ask how many callers hang up when the AI answers. The site gives ways to put a person first but no hang-up number.) If yes, say: "On real customer calls, [X]% of callers stayed on the line after the AI answered."
- Can you state where call recordings and customer details are stored and who can access them? (Buyers ask this. The site says the owner owns the data and recordings are kept up to 180 days, but not where they are stored or who can access them.) If yes, say: "Your recordings and customer details are stored in [where]. Only [who] can access them."

- Does a call answered by the AI count as answered for Google Local Services Ads responsiveness? (Buyers ask this and the site does not say.) If yes, say: "A call the AI answers counts as an answered call for your Local Services Ads."
- When a missed caller is on a landline and cannot receive the text-back, does something else happen, such as the caller landing in Needs Attention for a call back? (Buyers say text-back does nothing for a landline caller.) If yes, say: "If a missed caller is on a landline, they land in Needs Attention with a Call button, so nobody is lost to a text they never got."

Top posters

The people your top customers already listen to, place by place, to invite as affiliates or influencers: a referral fee for every customer they send, or paid posts if they make content. Reach each one from your own account in that place and say who you are. Each message is a draft to copy: fill in what is in brackets. This public sample leaves out who each person is.

Reddit

Listed: the people who wrote most about this in what the report read there.

1. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 7 replies · 37 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Reddit. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 5 replies · 116 reactions · 6 as a real buyer · talks about Miss the call, they call the next guy; After-hours emergencies reach the on-call tech

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Reddit about "Miss the call, they call the next guy". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 5 replies · 15 reactions · 5 as a real buyer · talks about Callers hang up on a robot; Voicemail and a callback work fine

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Reddit about "Callers hang up on a robot". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 3 replies · 2,946 reactions · 4 as a real buyer · talks about Callers hang up on a robot; Whoever answers has to know the trade

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Reddit about "Callers hang up on a robot". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

5. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 3 replies · 33 reactions · 4 as a real buyer · talks about What it costs, and what I get billed for; Every vendor promises the same, where's the proof

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Reddit about "What it costs, and what I get billed for". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

6. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 3 replies · 33 reactions · 2 as a real buyer · talks about Miss the call, they call the next guy

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Reddit about "Miss the call, they call the next guy". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

7. Name left out of the public sample · 4 replies · 8 reactions · 4 as a real buyer · talks about Callers hang up on a robot; It will say something wrong

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Reddit about "Callers hang up on a robot". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

8. Name left out of the public sample · 4 replies · 5 reactions · 4 as a real buyer · talks about After-hours emergencies reach the on-call tech; Callers hang up on a robot

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Reddit about "After-hours emergencies reach the on-call tech". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

9. Name left out of the public sample · 3 posts · 133 reactions · 3 as a real buyer · talks about Callers hang up on a robot

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Reddit about "Callers hang up on a robot". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

10. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 2 replies · 53 reactions · 2 as a real buyer

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Reddit. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

The top 10 of 100. Everyone, with their message, is in the top posters spreadsheet.

X / Twitter

Listed: the people who wrote most about this in what the report read there.

1. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 354 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on X / Twitter. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 3 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on X / Twitter. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

LinkedIn

Listed: the people who wrote most about this in what the report read there.

1. Name left out of the public sample · 8 replies · 3 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on LinkedIn. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 5 replies · 3 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on LinkedIn. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 2 replies · 1 reaction

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on LinkedIn. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 9 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on LinkedIn. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

5. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 9 reactions · 1 as a real buyer · talks about After-hours emergencies reach the on-call tech

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on LinkedIn about "After-hours emergencies reach the on-call tech". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

6. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 4 reactions · 1 as a real buyer

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on LinkedIn. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

7. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 3 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on LinkedIn. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

8. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 2 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on LinkedIn. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

9. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 1 reaction · 1 as a real buyer · talks about Miss the call, they call the next guy

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on LinkedIn about "Miss the call, they call the next guy". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

10. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 1 reaction

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on LinkedIn. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

The top 10 of 41. Everyone, with their message, is in the top posters spreadsheet.

YouTube

Listed: the people who wrote most about this in what the report read there.

1. Name left out of the public sample · 3 replies

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on YouTube. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 7 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on YouTube. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 3 reactions · 1 as a real buyer · talks about No time to set it up or babysit it

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on YouTube about "No time to set it up or babysit it". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 3 reactions · 1 as a real buyer · talks about Every vendor promises the same, where's the proof

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on YouTube about "Every vendor promises the same, where's the proof". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

5. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 3 reactions · 1 as a real buyer · talks about It will say something wrong

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on YouTube about "It will say something wrong". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

6. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 2 reactions · 1 as a real buyer

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on YouTube. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

7. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 2 reactions · 1 as a real buyer · talks about What it costs, and what I get billed for

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on YouTube about "What it costs, and what I get billed for". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

8. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 1 reaction · 1 as a real buyer

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on YouTube. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

9. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 1 reaction · 1 as a real buyer

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on YouTube. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

10. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 1 reaction · 1 as a real buyer · talks about No time to set it up or babysit it

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on YouTube about "No time to set it up or babysit it". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

The top 10 of 48. Everyone, with their message, is in the top posters spreadsheet.

TikTok

Listed: the people who wrote most about this in what the report read there.

1. Name left out of the public sample · 3 replies · 2 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on TikTok. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 2 replies · 16 reactions · 1 as a real buyer

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on TikTok. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 2 replies · 4 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on TikTok. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 365 reactions · 1 as a real buyer

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on TikTok. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

5. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 91 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on TikTok. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

6. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 48 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on TikTok. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

7. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 40 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on TikTok. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

8. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 34 reactions · 1 as a real buyer

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on TikTok. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

9. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 22 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on TikTok. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

10. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply · 16 reactions · 1 as a real buyer · talks about After-hours emergencies reach the on-call tech

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on TikTok about "After-hours emergencies reach the on-call tech". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

The top 10 of 39. Everyone, with their message, is in the top posters spreadsheet.

Facebook

Listed: the people who wrote most about this in what the report read there.

1. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 41 reactions · 1 as a real buyer · talks about Miss the call, they call the next guy

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Facebook about "Miss the call, they call the next guy". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 2 reactions · 1 as a real buyer

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Facebook. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 1 reaction · 1 as a real buyer

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Facebook. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 1 reply

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Facebook. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

Facebook groups

Listed: the people who wrote most about this in what the report read there.

1. Name left out of the public sample · 5 replies · 5 reactions · 5 as a real buyer · talks about Book the job, don't just take a message; After-hours emergencies reach the on-call tech

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Facebook groups about "Book the job, don't just take a message". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 3 replies · 2 reactions · 3 as a real buyer · talks about Book the job, don't just take a message

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Facebook groups about "Book the job, don't just take a message". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 2 replies · 8 reactions · 2 as a real buyer · talks about Book the job, don't just take a message

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Facebook groups about "Book the job, don't just take a message". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 2 replies · 5 reactions · 2 as a real buyer · talks about Spam, sales calls and price shoppers

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Facebook groups about "Spam, sales calls and price shoppers". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

5. Name left out of the public sample · 2 replies · 5 reactions · 2 as a real buyer · talks about Whoever answers has to know the trade; What it costs, and what I get billed for

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Facebook groups about "Whoever answers has to know the trade". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

6. Name left out of the public sample · 2 replies · 4 reactions · 2 as a real buyer · talks about Miss the call, they call the next guy

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Facebook groups about "Miss the call, they call the next guy". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

7. Name left out of the public sample · 2 replies · 4 reactions · 2 as a real buyer

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Facebook groups. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

8. Name left out of the public sample · 2 replies · 2 reactions · 2 as a real buyer · talks about It will say something wrong

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Facebook groups about "It will say something wrong". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

9. Name left out of the public sample · 2 replies · 1 reaction · 2 as a real buyer · talks about Book the job, don't just take a message

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Facebook groups about "Book the job, don't just take a message". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

10. Name left out of the public sample · 2 replies · 1 reaction

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Facebook groups. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

The top 10 of 100. Everyone, with their message, is in the top posters spreadsheet.

Quora

Listed: the people who wrote most about this in what the report read there.

1. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 3 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Quora. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 1 reaction · 1 as a real buyer · talks about After-hours emergencies reach the on-call tech

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Quora about "After-hours emergencies reach the on-call tech". People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

PlumbingZone

The forum's own public rankings: most messages, highest reaction score and most points (20 a list).

1. Name left out of the public sample · 20,659 messages · 14,151 reaction score · joined Sep 8, 2008

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on PlumbingZone. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 16,934 messages · 16,420 reaction score · joined Aug 27, 2010

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on PlumbingZone. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 13,780 messages · 10,361 reaction score · joined Feb 19, 2010

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on PlumbingZone. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 12,263 messages · 18,493 reaction score · joined Oct 27, 2015

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on PlumbingZone. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

5. Name left out of the public sample · 12,217 messages · 22,095 reaction score · joined Mar 23, 2015

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on PlumbingZone. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

6. Name left out of the public sample · 10,598 messages · 18,343 reaction score · joined Jan 13, 2018

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on PlumbingZone. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

7. Name left out of the public sample · 10,478 messages · 15,604 reaction score · joined Jan 13, 2016

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on PlumbingZone. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

8. Name left out of the public sample · 10,119 messages · 13,200 reaction score · joined Aug 14, 2009

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on PlumbingZone. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

9. Name left out of the public sample · 9,003 messages · 4,230 reaction score · joined Feb 5, 2010

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on PlumbingZone. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

10. Name left out of the public sample · 8,904 messages · 7,208 reaction score · joined Apr 1, 2009

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on PlumbingZone. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

The top 10 of 37. Everyone, with their message, is in the top posters spreadsheet.

HVAC-Talk

The forum's own public rankings: most messages, highest reaction score and most points (20 a list).

1. Name left out of the public sample · 78,168 messages · 2 reaction score · joined Jan 25, 2004

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVAC-Talk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 61,970 messages · 16 reaction score · joined Sep 17, 2005

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVAC-Talk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 57,873 messages · 1,611 reaction score · joined Aug 20, 2002

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVAC-Talk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 57,568 messages · 3,097 reaction score · joined May 12, 2014

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVAC-Talk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

5. Name left out of the public sample · 54,959 messages · 51 reaction score · joined Nov 20, 2000

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVAC-Talk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

6. Name left out of the public sample · 52,907 messages · 1,544 reaction score · joined Jan 30, 2010

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVAC-Talk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

7. Name left out of the public sample · 40,447 messages · 600 reaction score · joined Sep 18, 2002

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVAC-Talk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

8. Name left out of the public sample · 35,969 messages · 322 reaction score · joined May 30, 2006

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVAC-Talk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

9. Name left out of the public sample · 35,006 messages · 1,209 reaction score · joined Jul 31, 2019

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVAC-Talk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

10. Name left out of the public sample · 33,061 messages · 239 reaction score · joined Nov 24, 2006

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVAC-Talk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

The top 10 of 32. Everyone, with their message, is in the top posters spreadsheet.

HVACSite

The forum's own public rankings: most messages, highest reaction score and most points (20 a list).

1. Name left out of the public sample · 3,507 messages · 809 reaction score · joined Dec 18, 2022

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVACSite. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 609 messages · 1 reaction score · joined Jun 18, 2009

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVACSite. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 599 messages · 2 reaction score · joined May 15, 2009

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVACSite. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 466 messages · 179 reaction score · joined Sep 9, 2024

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVACSite. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

5. Name left out of the public sample · 250 messages · joined Jun 25, 2009

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVACSite. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

6. Name left out of the public sample · 225 messages · joined Jun 3, 2013

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVACSite. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

7. Name left out of the public sample · 206 messages · 92 reaction score · joined Jun 30, 2024

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVACSite. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

8. Name left out of the public sample · 196 messages · 13 reaction score · joined Jan 21, 2022

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVACSite. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

9. Name left out of the public sample · 173 messages · 24 reaction score · joined Oct 3, 2010

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVACSite. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

10. Name left out of the public sample · 165 messages · 21 reaction score · joined Aug 16, 2023

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on HVACSite. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

The top 10 of 41. Everyone, with their message, is in the top posters spreadsheet.

Heating Help

Listed: the members who posted most in the threads this report read there.

1. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Heating Help. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Heating Help. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Heating Help. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Heating Help. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

5. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Heating Help. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

6. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Heating Help. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

7. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Heating Help. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

8. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Heating Help. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

9. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on Heating Help. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

ContractorTalk

Its member rankings could not be read, even through Apify's browser. Listed: the members who posted most in the threads this report read there.

1. Name left out of the public sample · 4 replies

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ContractorTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 2 replies

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ContractorTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 2 replies

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ContractorTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 2 replies

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ContractorTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

5. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 208 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ContractorTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

6. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 129 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ContractorTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

7. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 56 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ContractorTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

8. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 36 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ContractorTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

9. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 25 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ContractorTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

10. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 19 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ContractorTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

The top 10 of 39. Everyone, with their message, is in the top posters spreadsheet.

ElectricianTalk

Its member rankings could not be read, even through Apify's browser. Listed: the members who posted most in the threads this report read there.

1. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 236 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ElectricianTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 83 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ElectricianTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 70 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ElectricianTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 37 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ElectricianTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

5. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 36 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ElectricianTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

6. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 11 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ElectricianTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

7. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 9 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ElectricianTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

8. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 7 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ElectricianTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

9. Name left out of the public sample · 1 post · 6 reactions

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on ElectricianTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

RoofingTalk

The forum's own public rankings: most messages, highest reaction score and most points (20 a list).

1. Name left out of the public sample · 2,531 messages · 14 reaction score · joined Oct 29, 2008

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on RoofingTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 1,162 messages · 177 reaction score · joined Jul 7, 2012

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on RoofingTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 939 messages · 1 reaction score · joined Dec 20, 2010

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on RoofingTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 752 messages · joined Sep 15, 2008

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on RoofingTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

5. Name left out of the public sample · 423 messages · 1 reaction score · joined Oct 28, 2008

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on RoofingTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

6. Name left out of the public sample · 351 messages · 1 reaction score · joined Dec 26, 2008

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on RoofingTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

7. Name left out of the public sample · 347 messages · 4 reaction score · joined Sep 27, 2009

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on RoofingTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

8. Name left out of the public sample · 321 messages · joined Dec 21, 2011

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on RoofingTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

9. Name left out of the public sample · 262 messages · 1 reaction score · joined Aug 12, 2010

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on RoofingTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

10. Name left out of the public sample · 226 messages · joined Oct 30, 2008

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on RoofingTalk. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

The top 10 of 46. Everyone, with their message, is in the top posters spreadsheet.

The Garage Journal

The forum's own public rankings: most messages, highest reaction score and most points (20 a list).

1. Name left out of the public sample · 52,118 messages · 43,818 reaction score

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on The Garage Journal. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 43,904 messages · 6,764 reaction score

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on The Garage Journal. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 39,958 messages · 19,721 reaction score

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on The Garage Journal. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 38,526 messages · 64,824 reaction score

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on The Garage Journal. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

5. Name left out of the public sample · 38,450 messages · 25,070 reaction score

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on The Garage Journal. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

6. Name left out of the public sample · 38,398 messages · 41,970 reaction score

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on The Garage Journal. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

7. Name left out of the public sample · 36,368 messages · 7,963 reaction score

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on The Garage Journal. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

8. Name left out of the public sample · 32,625 messages · 29,082 reaction score

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on The Garage Journal. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

9. Name left out of the public sample · 31,479 messages · 23,650 reaction score

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on The Garage Journal. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

10. Name left out of the public sample · 31,372 messages · 20,674 reaction score

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on The Garage Journal. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

The top 10 of 49. Everyone, with their message, is in the top posters spreadsheet.

---

r/Plumbing

It had 498 top posts this year. Who posted most, and drew the most upvotes, in the subreddit's top 1,000 posts of the past year.

1. Name left out of the public sample · 3 top posts · 1,643 upvotes · 667 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/Plumbing. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 3 top posts · 805 upvotes · 418 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/Plumbing. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 2 top posts · 4,205 upvotes · 122 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/Plumbing. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 2 top posts · 2,429 upvotes · 213 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/Plumbing. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

5. Name left out of the public sample · 2 top posts · 2,370 upvotes · 490 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/Plumbing. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

6. Name left out of the public sample · 2 top posts · 2,215 upvotes · 303 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/Plumbing. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

7. Name left out of the public sample · 2 top posts · 763 upvotes · 198 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/Plumbing. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

8. Name left out of the public sample · 2 top posts · 608 upvotes · 269 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/Plumbing. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

9. Name left out of the public sample · 2 top posts · 438 upvotes · 126 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/Plumbing. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

10. Name left out of the public sample · 1 top post · 11,152 upvotes · 1,152 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/Plumbing. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

The top 10 of 100. Everyone, with their message, is in the top posters spreadsheet.

r/HVAC

It had 495 top posts this year. Who posted most, and drew the most upvotes, in the subreddit's top 1,000 posts of the past year.

1. Name left out of the public sample · 21 top posts · 5,350 upvotes · 1,315 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/HVAC. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 9 top posts · 3,420 upvotes · 587 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/HVAC. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 9 top posts · 2,934 upvotes · 513 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/HVAC. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 5 top posts · 2,238 upvotes · 362 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/HVAC. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

5. Name left out of the public sample · 5 top posts · 1,051 upvotes · 219 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/HVAC. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

6. Name left out of the public sample · 5 top posts · 980 upvotes · 346 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/HVAC. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

7. Name left out of the public sample · 4 top posts · 2,676 upvotes · 200 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/HVAC. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

8. Name left out of the public sample · 4 top posts · 1,348 upvotes · 216 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/HVAC. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

9. Name left out of the public sample · 4 top posts · 1,219 upvotes · 341 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/HVAC. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

10. Name left out of the public sample · 4 top posts · 1,198 upvotes · 136 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/HVAC. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

The top 10 of 100. Everyone, with their message, is in the top posters spreadsheet.

r/electricians

It had 497 top posts this year. Who posted most, and drew the most upvotes, in the subreddit's top 1,000 posts of the past year.

1. Name left out of the public sample · 9 top posts · 10,051 upvotes · 1,336 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/electricians. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

2. Name left out of the public sample · 5 top posts · 5,583 upvotes · 716 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/electricians. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

3. Name left out of the public sample · 3 top posts · 2,370 upvotes · 111 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/electricians. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

4. Name left out of the public sample · 3 top posts · 2,174 upvotes · 316 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/electricians. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

5. Name left out of the public sample · 3 top posts · 2,124 upvotes · 563 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/electricians. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

6. Name left out of the public sample · 2 top posts · 6,788 upvotes · 658 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/electricians. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

7. Name left out of the public sample · 2 top posts · 3,860 upvotes · 322 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/electricians. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

8. Name left out of the public sample · 2 top posts · 3,653 upvotes · 371 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/electricians. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

9. Name left out of the public sample · 2 top posts · 3,412 upvotes · 571 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/electricians. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

10. Name left out of the public sample · 2 top posts · 3,103 upvotes · 185 comments

> Hi [their name], I've been reading your posts on r/electricians. People there clearly listen to you. I run [your business] (AI phone answering and job booking for home-service contractors), and I'm looking for a few people who know this world to partner with: a referral fee for every customer you send us, or paid posts if you make content. Would you be open to a quick chat? [your name]

The top 10 of 100. Everyone, with their message, is in the top posters spreadsheet.

Where your buyers talk

The list made for this product, the places with the most posts and replies from real buyers first.

- Reddit (Social platform) www.reddit.com: 419 buyer posts, 750 seller posts, 798 posts and 2704 replies read
- Facebook groups (Social platform) www.facebook.com/groups/: 184 buyer posts, 90 seller posts, 160 posts and 332 replies read. Public Facebook groups where these questions were asked, found through Google. The comments under each post are read too.
- r/Plumbing (Subreddit, named by you) www.reddit.com/r/Plumbing/: 73 buyer posts, 71 seller posts, 162 posts and 333 replies read
- YouTube (Social platform) www.youtube.com: 37 buyer posts, 203 seller posts, 197 posts and 255 replies read
- PlumbingZone (Trade forum) www.plumbingzone.com: 25 buyer posts, 7 seller posts, 20 posts and 42 replies read
- Mike Holt Forums (Forum, community or review site) forums.mikeholt.com: 22 buyer posts, 0 seller posts, 6 posts and 26 replies read. Large electrician forum where electrical contractors discuss running their business, including handling calls and office help.
- r/electricians (Subreddit, named by you) www.reddit.com/r/electricians/: 19 buyer posts, 1 seller post, 208 posts and 109 replies read
- TikTok (Social platform) www.tiktok.com: 15 buyer posts, 182 seller posts, 157 posts and 127 replies read
- r/HVAC (Subreddit, named by you) www.reddit.com/r/HVAC/: 10 buyer posts, 5 seller posts, 166 posts and 181 replies read
- HVAC-Talk (Trade forum) www.hvac-talk.com: 10 buyer posts, 2 seller posts, 16 posts and 20 replies read
- LinkedIn (Social platform) www.linkedin.com: 6 buyer posts, 340 seller posts, 977 posts and 181 replies read
- Electrical Contractor Network forums (Forum, community or review site) electrical-contractor.net: 6 buyer posts, 0 seller posts, 0 posts and 6 replies read. Long-running electrical contractor discussion board with business topics.
- HVACSite (Trade forum) www.hvacsite.com: 4 buyer posts, 0 seller posts, 5 posts and 4 replies read
- Facebook (Social platform) www.facebook.com: 3 buyer posts, 47 seller posts, 75 posts and 64 replies read
- ContractorTalk (Trade forum) www.contractortalk.com: 3 buyer posts, 2 seller posts, 18 posts and 29 replies read
- Quora (Social platform) www.quora.com: 1 buyer post, 4 seller posts, 44 posts and 0 replies read
- X / Twitter (Social platform) x.com: 0 buyer posts, 77 seller posts, 86 posts and 7 replies read

- Web & News (Social platform): 0 buyer posts, 31 seller posts, 42 posts and 0 replies read
- Heating Help (Trade forum) forum.heatinghelp.com: 0 buyer posts, 0 seller posts, 9 posts and 0 replies read
- ElectricianTalk (Trade forum) www.electriciantalk.com: 0 buyer posts, 0 seller posts, 9 posts and 0 replies read
- G2 (Forum, community or review site) g2.com: 0 buyer posts, 2 seller posts, 8 posts and 0 replies read. Review site where buyers rate and compare AI receptionist, answering service and business phone software.
- Capterra (Forum, community or review site) capterra.com: not read (Not read: Google found 40 threads but none would open (HTTP 403).). Small-business software reviews covering answering services, virtual receptionists and VoIP phone systems.
- Software Advice (Forum, community or review site) softwareadvice.com: not read (Not read: Google found 32 threads but none would open (HTTP 403).). Reviews and comparisons of call answering and field-service software read by small contractors.
- RoofersCoffeeShop (Forum, community or review site) rooferscoffeeshop.com: 0 buyer posts, 4 seller posts, 4 posts and 1 reply read. Roofing contractor community with a forum where owners discuss business operations and tools.
- Competitor site: avoca.com (Competitor site, named by you) avoca.com: 0 buyer posts, 0 seller posts, 3 posts and 0 replies read
- Competitor site: ringcentral.com (Competitor site, named by you) ringcentral.com: 0 buyer posts, 2 seller posts, 3 posts and 0 replies read
- GetApp (Forum, community or review site) getapp.com: 0 buyer posts, 3 seller posts, 3 posts and 0 replies read. Reviews and side-by-side comparisons of call answering software
- Product Hunt (Forum, community or review site) producthunt.com: 0 buyer posts, 3 seller posts, 3 posts and 0 replies read
- RoofingTalk (Trade forum) www.roofingtalk.com: 0 buyer posts, 0 seller posts, 2 posts and 0 replies read
- The Garage Journal (Forum, community or review site) garagejournal.com/forum: 0 buyer posts, 0 seller posts, 2 posts and 0 replies read. Tradespeople and small shop owners discuss tools and business operations, including phone handling.
- Clutch (Forum, community or review site) clutch.co: 0 buyer posts, 0 seller posts, 1 post and 0 replies read. Reviews of answering service and call center providers used by small businesses.
- TrustRadius (Forum, community or review site) trustradius.com: 0 buyer posts, 1 seller post, 1 post and 0 replies read
- Trustpilot (Forum, community or review site) trustpilot.com: not read (Not read: Google found 40 threads but none would open (HTTP 403).). Customer reviews of answering services and phone providers, often from small business owners.
- DSLReports Forums (Forum, community or review site) dslreports.com/forum: not read (Not read: Google found no threads on this site for these questions.). Long-running VoIP and business phone discussion boards where small businesses compare phone providers.

- Competitor site: sameday.com (Competitor site, named by you) sameday.com: not read (Could not read that website (fetch failed).)

Where this came from

- Reddit: 790 posts, 2543 replies
- X / Twitter: 35 posts, 4 replies
- LinkedIn: 918 posts, 176 replies
- YouTube: 148 posts, 229 replies
- TikTok: 103 posts, 83 replies
- Facebook: 54 posts, 61 replies
- Facebook groups: 160 posts, 332 replies (160 posts found in 127 public groups; 36 that looked to be about the subject had no comments or could not be opened, and are not counted)
- Quora: 38 posts
- Web & News: 14 posts
- PlumbingZone: 20 posts, 42 replies
- HVAC-Talk: 16 posts, 20 replies
- HVACSite: 5 posts, 4 replies
- Heating Help: 9 posts
- ContractorTalk: 17 posts, 28 replies
- ElectricianTalk: 9 posts
- RoofingTalk: 2 posts
- Mike Holt Forums: 2 posts, 7 replies (2 of 2 threads Google found were read.)
- The Garage Journal: 2 posts
- G2: 6 posts (6 of 40 threads Google found were read (5 through a browser); 34 would not open (HTTP 403, redirected (302)).)
- Capterra: error (Not read: Google found 40 threads but none would open (HTTP 403).) (0 of 40 threads Google found were read; 40 would not open (HTTP 403).)
- Trustpilot: error (Not read: Google found 40 threads but none would open (HTTP 403).) (0 of 40 threads Google found were read; 40 would not open (HTTP 403).)
- Software Advice: error (Not read: Google found 32 threads but none would open (HTTP 403).) (0 of 32 threads Google found were read; 32 would not open (HTTP 403).)
- Clutch: 1 post (1 of 27 threads Google found were read (1 through a browser); 26 would not open (HTTP 403).)
- DSLReports Forums: error (Not read: Google found no threads on this site for these questions.)
- r/Plumbing: 162 posts, 333 replies
- r/HVAC: 166 posts, 181 replies
- r/electricians: 208 posts, 109 replies

- Competitor site: avoca.com: 3 posts
- Competitor site: sameday.com: error (Could not read that website (fetch failed).)
- Competitor site: ringcentral.com: 3 posts
- RoofersCoffeeShop: 0 posts
- Electrical Contractor Network forums: 0 posts
- GetApp: 0 posts
- Product Hunt: 0 posts
- TrustRadius: 0 posts

Replies were read under 853 posts that were about the category, up to 20 under each. No replies to read on: Quora, Web & News.

Made with TheLingo.ai: what your buyers say, in their own words.

Made with TheLingo.ai (thelingo.ai) on 2026-11-13.